SPEECH

OF

HON. ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE,

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,

Thursday, January 12, 1922.

The Senate had under consideration Senate Resolution 172, submitted by Mr. Spencer, November 15, 1921, declaring Truman H. Newberry to be entitled to a sent in the Senate of the United States.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. President, for 70 years after the establishment of this Government there had never been a charge presented raising the issue of corruption against a Member of this body. For 70 years no man's title to a seat in the Senate had been questioned on the charge of bribery or corruption in any form.

Throughout this long period our national life was free from corrupting influences.

Business did not attempt to control Government and Government did not find it necessary to defend itself against business. Since that time the right of 13 United States Senators has been challenged on the ground that they were guilty of bribery and corruption. During my relatively short service here, three of these 13 cases have been brought to trial at the bar of the Senate. The first was the Lorimer case in 1910 and 1911; the second was the Stephenson case; and the third is the Newberry case now before the Senate.

Mr. President, no danger menaces us from without, nor ever will so long as we pursue a just and righteous policy in all our dealings with the other nations of the world.

The gravest danger menacing the life of the American democracy is corruption from within.

The greatest issue before the American people to-day is the control of their own Government.

That issue is presented in the case of Truman H. Newberry. We have been more than two years investigating the record in this case. We have before us not only the hearings of the Senate investigating committee but the complete record of the criminal proceedings which resulted in Mr. Newberry's conviction by a jury of his peers in Michigan. This contest has been more exhaustively argued before the Senate than any election case that has been determined since I have been a Member of this body.

haustively argued before the Senate than any election case that has been determined since I have been a Member of this body. I have read the record. I have given particular attention to the speech made by the sitting Member in his own behalf and to the speeches of those who contend that he should be given a clear title to a seat in this body. It would be idle at this hour, if it were possible to do so in the limited time at my disposal, to attempt in detail to review the evidence before the Senate. I content myself, str, with stating my conclusions in respect to it based upon those facts which have been established by proper evidence to be true, and which have been either admitted or not denied by the sitting Member or his supporters.

Mr. President, these are the facts that will hereafter be accepted as proven and established for all time to come after the Senate has given its decision on the case now under consideration;

(1) That a sum of money admitted to have been at least $195,000, and alleged with ample supporting proof to have reached between $250,000 and $300,000, was expended in the primary election in Michigan in 1918 for the purpose of controlling the result of the Republican primary.

(2) That the expenditure of this sum of money did control the result of the primary, the candidate in whose behalf it was spent having been declared nominated by a narrow margin over his opponent.

(3) That a substantial portion of this great sum of money was expended for purposes specifically declared illegal by the laws of Michigan.

(4) That this money was expended in violation of the State law limiting expenditures to $3,750, and in violation of the Federal corrupt practices act then in force limiting expenditures to $10,000.

(5) That this money was raised and expended by a committee the organization of which was suggested, the chairman of which was selected, and the methods and policies of which were approved by Truman H. Newberry, the sitting Member.

(6) That Mr. Newberry was, throughout the campaign, in daily communication (by letter, telegraph, and telephone) with the campaign manager actively engaged in the expenditure of this large sum of money whose selection he had approved, whose methods he repeatedly indorsed and ratified, and to whose activity in the campaign, by his own admissions, he owed his nomination and subsequent election.

(7) That the raising and the expenditure of the vast sum that is admitted to have been expended in this contest in Michigan, and the methods employed in its expenditure. were so open and so notorious as to put the sitting Member upon full notice.

Mr. President. I need not turn aside to recite in detail the testimony in support of each of these propositions. Again and again in the course of this discussion they have been spread upon the records of the Senate. Let no man believe for one moment that they have not reached the country, that they have not been recorded in the minds of the great constituency that sits back of every seat in this Chamber.

I recently returned from a brief visit to my own State. Permit me to say, sir, that the great international conference in Washington, that the consideration of a measure affecting $11,washington, that the consideration of a measure affecting $11,000,000,000 of foreign loans, that many other questions that would be expected, perhaps, by Senators to be uppermost in the minds of the people of this country, are not the burning issues with the public at this hour. There is one question paramount in the minds of the people of this country to-day, and that is whether it is possible to buy a seat in the United States Senate for a quarter of a million to half a million dollars. That is the working with which grown Members of the Senate will find him. question with which every Member of the Senate will find himself confronted when he goes to his constituency for authority to represent them for another six years.

The facts of this case have been brought home to the American people so clearly that they will make no mistake in passing judgment upon the action of the United States Senate in decid-

The resolution declaring Newberry entitled to his seat condemns the methods by which he obtained it in the following language:

The expenditure of such excessive sums in behalf of a candidate, either with or without his knowledge and consent, being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate, and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, such excessive expenditures are hereby severely condemned and disapproved.

In seating the beneficiary of the expenditures referred to, it is my sincere belief that Senators who vote for Newberry dishonor themselves and place the United States Senate in a humiliating position before the country. It is a fearful price to pay in order to confirm the sale of a single seat in the United States Senate.

The only plea on which Senators can defend a vote to seat Mr. Newberry is that he did not know of the enormous funds expended in his behalf and was not a participant in his own campaign. This lame excuse will make no appeal to the common sense of the American people. It is contradicted by the admitted facts on the record.

In the face of the pitiful claim of Newberry and his sup-porters that "he did not know," the following facts stand our boldly on the record uncontroverted and unassailable:

Newberry himself suggested the organization of the "business men's committee" which was placed in charge of his campaign. Newberry requested that his business partner, Allen Templeton, act as the chairman of that committee, and Templeton did so act at Newberry's suggestion.

Nearly one year before the primary Newberry sent his confidential agent, Fred Cody, to Washington to ask J. G. Hayden, a newspaper man, to become active manager of his campaign a few months later. Hayden having declined the offer, Newberry held a conference with Paul King at which Newberry definitely engaged King as his active campaign manager. At this conference King informed Newberry that the primary campaign would cost him "at least $50,000."

The names of Mr. Floyd as secretary and Mr. Blair as treasurer of the campaign committee were sent to Newberry for his approval before either of these two gentlemen began to function as members of his committee.

From March 6, 1918, until primary day in August, Paul King reported almost daily to Newberry the progress of the campaign, advising him in detail by telephone, telegraph, or letter of the methods and practices being employed to secure his nomination

During the course of the campaign King frequently applied to Newberry for approval of the policies he was pursuing, and Newberry on numerous occasions offered advice, suggestions, and encouragement to his campaign manager.

Every penny of the $195,000 openly acknowledged to have been spent was contributed by members of Newberry's family and his business partners. Of the total amount, John Newberry, brother of Truman, admitted he had contributed $99.000. Fred Smith, confidential agent of the Newberrys, who held the power of attorney for Truman and John Newberry, drew checks for the use of the campaign committee. Smith admitted under oath that when the account of John Newberry ran low he replenished the account by checking from the account of Truman Newberry, but Smith and John Newberry swore that such amounts were later made good by John Newberry.

In addition to the acknowledgment of an expenditure of $195,000, abundant evidence was produced to show that the total expenditures exceeded a quarter of a million. law of Michigan permitted only an expenditure of $3,750 by a candidate for the Senate. While the campaign was in progress it is undisputed that both the lieutenant governor of Michigan and a leading newspaper editor of the State advised Newberry that a "boodle" campaign was being waged in his behalf. Although put on notice that the methods of which he was approving almost daily in his letters to King were notoriously calling for excessive expenditures, the record shows that Newberry continued to encourage his friends in conducting exactly the sort of a campaign that required unlimited expenditures of money and did absolutely nothing to restrain the reckless and corrupting activities of his appointed agents. Such are the established facts disclosed in page after page of the evidence in the Newberry case. Every Senator who votes for Newberry does so in the face of these facts. Newberry himself was necessarily in possession of these facts when he filed with the Secretary of State his sworn statement in which he declared:

The campaign for my nomination for United States Senator has been voluntarily conducted by my friends in Michigan. I have taken no part in it whatever and no contributions for expenditures have been made with my knowledge or consent.

In his speech in his defense in the Senate, January 9, Newberry admitted that-the cost of the campaign was about $195,000,

This was his comment:

I can only say that I regret exceedingly the fact that so large an amount of money was necessarily expended.

The only inference that can be drawn from that statement is that Newberry to this hour condones and justifies the expenditure in his behalf of a sum which the resolution to seat him brands as "contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the Senate, and dangerous to the per-petuity of a free government." And if the United States Senate condemns the crime and rewards the beneficiary of the crime a man who blandly asserts that the corruption fund raised and expended in his behalf was "necessarily" employed to gain his nomination and election at the hands of the people of Michigan-time will tell whether the American people are as tolerant of the domestic enemies of free government as is the United Contrast this case, Mr. President, with the Lorimer case! On April 6, 1911, at the first session of the Sixty-second Congress, I introduced in the Senate a resolution providing that a special committee be appointed to reopen and reinvestigate the charges that "corrupt methods and practices" had been employed in the election of William Lorinner as United States Senator by the legislature of the State of Illinois.

On March 1, 1911, a resolution providing for the expulsion of Senator Lorimer had been defeated by a vote of 40 to 46.

I did what I could, on the evening that vote was taken, to prevent a roll call. I was confident, from information which had come to me, that there was an abundance of evidence to show that bribery had been employed to secure for Mr. Lorimer his seat as a Member of the Senate. I was unable to produce the facts at that time, and Mr. Lorimer's title to his seat was confirmed by a vote of 40 to 46.

After the 4th of March, when the Congress that had declared Mr. Lorimer entitled to his seat adjourned, I devoted some time to an investigation of the case, and when Congress reassembled I presented a resolution asking for a reopening of that case. I secured action upon that resolution, the case was reopened, and Mr. Lorimer was denied his seat by a vote of That action established the precedent which makes possible the reopening of cases of this character upon the discovery of new evidence, even though the Senate may have previously voted to seat the Member whose title to his seat is questioned.

Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WADSWORTH in the chair). Does the Senator yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I yield. Mr. KENYON. Does not the Senator really think, in view of the action of the Senate now, that we ought to open that case up and reverse the action taken then, and invite Mr. Lorimer

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. If the sitting Member from Michigan is to have the title to his seat confirmed, Lorimer ought to have been seated, for I think he had a much better title to his seat than the sitting Member [Mr. Newberry] has to the one he now occupies.

With a full knowledge of the facts of the Lorimer case, and of the issue which is presented to the Senate for consideration at this time, I assert without hesitation that the corrupt methods and practices revealed in the Michigan primary are infinitely more reprehensible and more injurious to representative government than the methods and practices employed in behalf of William Lorimer.

I assert that the personal knowledge and guilt of Truman H. Newberry have been established more conclusively than were the personal knowledge and guilt of William Lorimer of the methods employed in his behalf, and that a review of the testimony in the two cases will convince any Senator of open mind that that is true.

Lorimer's political aids had not attempted to poison the fountain of democracy at its source by corrupting the people themselves. A few thousand dollars were spent by Lorimer's friends to purchase the votes of half a dozen depraved members of the Illinois Legislature. Lorimer was not an active participant in the methods and practices employed in the canvass; it was shown by circumstantial evidence only that he had knowledge of the acts and approved the plans of his dishonest agents; he never admitted the expenditure of a penny in his behalf, and only a portion of the $100,000 "slush fund" alleged to have been raised was ever shown to have been expended.

Lorimer was never indicted or tried in the courts of his

State. Newberry was indicted and convicted.

Lorimer submitted himself to an examination by the committee appointed by the Senate to investigate his election. Newberry did not do that, and Newberry came before the Senate of the United States, if the public press is to be accepted as any approach to truth, only when certain Members here demanded that he appear to say something in his own defense, else they would not vote for him.

Lorimer took the floor in the Senate and for days defended himself against the charges lodged against him. wait until the hour limit had been reached in the debates. was open to question by any Senator all the time that his case was before the Senate. With the exception of a single case was before the Senate. With the exception of a single hour, when he occupied the floor in his own defense, in the long period that his case has been under consideration by the committee and the Senate, Newberry has been conspicuous by his absence and his failure to appear and testify or speak in his own defense.

Stop just a moment and think of it! Is there another Member of this body who, under the imputation of having a seat here the title to which is challenged, would be willing to hold it stolidly for three years, vote on important matters, and never rise to demand an investigation; never appear before a committee and say, "I demand to be heard in my own defense! My hands are clean. Come one, come all, who dare assail my title to my seat in the United States Senate!"

Mr. POMERENE. Mr. President—

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I yield to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. POMERENE. The occurrences of the last few days remind me of the statement made by former Speaker Reed when an election case was pending before the House. He said that the only time when the House decided politically was when it sat judicially.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Yes, Mr. President. But I have been led to believe that when this body sits in impeachment cases and to try the title of Senators to their seats for the long period of six years, we ought to bring to bear upon such occasions a calm and dispassionate regard for the merits of the cases. I approached the study of this case with that attitude of mind.

But I am bound to say, and I believe it will be the verdict of history, and I believe that it will be the sober second judgment of the Members of this body, that this case can never be settled until it is settled rightly by the retirement of the beneficiary of this corrupt election.

Think what a seat in this body means. The heart of representative government lies in the Congress. If it is corrupted, corruption enters all the life currents in the body of this Government. can have no honest representative government if United States Senators can be chosen by corruption in any form. When any man who is a Member of this body is challenged as to the integrity of his right to sit here and remains silent for three years, that man has confessed that he dare not submit himself to an investigation as to his right and title to a seat.

The Lorimer case revealed an attempt by corrupt preda-tory wealth to defeat representative government by purchasing the votes of members of a legislature bound under their oaths to elect a United States Senator. Sir, the Senate of that day repelled this assault upon free government. The newer Members of the Senate at that time could not be whipped into line under the party lash, as they appear to be whipped into line

No unbiased person who has watched the contest in the Senate in the pending case will assert that partisanship has not been invoked to keep Truman H. Newberry in the Senate. New Members of this body have been given to understand that a vote for Newberry will be the only proof acceptable to the leaders of the majority in this Chamber of their Republicanism and their devotion to Republican principles. Mr. President, that has been asserted again and again on this floor, and it has been denied by no one.

When Lorimer was on trial, in a case which did not present a degree of the corruption proven in this case, those who are now invoking partisanship and party loyalty did not them-selves vote to seat Lorimer. The very men who now are wield-ing the party lash across the shoulders of some of the newer Members of this body could not bring themselves to vote for

I have before me the roll call taken on July 13, 1912, in the second contest in the Lorimer case, which resulted in the expulsion of William Lorimer. It is found in volume 48, part 9, It shows that the senior Senator from Massachupage 8387. It shows that the senior senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Lodge], the junior Senator from Washington [Mr. Poindexter], the then Senator from New York, Eilhu Root, and the senior Senator from Michigan [Mr. Townsend], and other Republican Senators who are jealous of their Republicanism, voted against William Lorimer, although he had been elected as a Senator of their own political faith; although only circumstantial evidence could connect him with the use of money; and although many of them had voted to seat him in the preceding trial of the case.

Mr. President, it sometimes has a wholesome influence upon this body, I have observed, to let the country know about the facts in cases such as these. I never have been able to determine the psychological effect of the retrial of the Lorimer case before the United States Senate on the votes that were cast by Senators. It takes time to get the full effect of public opinion upon any great question; but after the Lorimer case had been tried twice before this body the public had taken hold of all the facts regarding the case, and when the second vote came, how much the majority against Lorimer was due to a better understanding of the testimony on the part of Senators and how much of it was due to the fact that the Senators knew that their constituents had a full understanding of the case and would hold them to a strict account on the votes they cast. I do not exactly know.

Mr. President, the final decision of the Senate in the Lorimer case established the principle that money used in behalf of a candidate to corruptly influence members of a legislature charged with the election of a United States Senator invalidated that election and rendered the beneficiary of the corruption ineligible to a seat in the Senate.

The people have since enacted through their representatives and by constitutional amendment a system of direct primaries and direct elections of United States Senators in order to protect themselves against the type of corruption revealed in the Lorimer case. Wealth has met this situation as it meets every attempt by government to check the impudent misuse of its Since the enactment of these necessary laws, wealth has sought to thwart the will of the people and to subvert the purposes and policies of the Government itself by controlling primary and general elections by the corrupt use of money

While the facts which confront the Senate to-day may differ from those established in the Lorimer case, the underlying issue is the same. As the Senate approaches the hour when it shall decide this case in the light of this issue, the American people are waiting to pass judgment upon the United States Senate,

If we decide here to-night to confirm the election of one in whose behalf, by his own confession, the sum of $195,000 was expended to gain his nomination, we have opened the door to the unlimited use of money to control elections wherever they are held in the United States, Money may be expended as in this case in behalf of a rich man. It may be expended hereafter in behalf of a poor man by great corporations whose greed prompts them to purchase seats in legislative chambers. but in any event its purpose will be corruption, and as surely as night follows the day corruption in elections will ripen into corruption in legislation and government.

Mr. President, the Senate is confronted to-day with the domestic enemies of republican government against which patriots now in their graves have warned us. As the Senate proceeds to the decision of this issue, I recall the words of Chief Justice Edward G. Ryan, one of the noblest men who ever sat upon the bench, spoken nearly half a century ago in warning against this insidious foe revealed to-day in the Senate in its full ugliness and strength. Speaking before the University of Wisconsin Law School in 1873, he said:

versity of Wisconsin Law School in 1873, he said:

There is looming up a new and dark power. I can not dwell upon the signs and shocking omens of its advent. The accumulation of individual wealth seems to be greater than it ever has been since the downfail of the Roman Empire. The enterprises of the country are aggregating wast corporate combinations of unexampled capital, boldly marching, not for economic conquests only, but for political power. For the first time really in our politics money is taking the field as an organized power. * * Aiready, here at home, one great corporation has trified with the sovereign power, and insuited the state. There is grave fear that it, and its great rival, have confederated to make partition of the state and share it as spoils. * The question will arise, and arise in your, day, though pelabal leads—money or intellect; who shall fill public stations—educated and patriotic free men, or the feudal serfs of corporate capital?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of the Senator

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of the Senator from Wisconsin has expired.

Mr. KING. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator may have an extension of his time.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I thank the Senator, but that would be a violation of the unanimous-consent agreement, and I submit to the rule.

SPEECH

HON. W. FRANK JAMES. OF MICHIGAN,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, February 1, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 4) granting relief to soldiers and satiors of the War with Spain, Philippine insurrection, and Chinese Boxer rebellion campaign; to widows, former widows, and dependent parents of such soldiers and satiors; and to certain Army nurses.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. Nurses are very well treated, if not too well treated, under this bill. I saw service in Cuba in the Spanish-American War, but I never saw a nurse of any description either in the United States or in Cuba. I have talked with men who saw service in Porto Rico or in the Philippines, and they state they saw only one or two nurses. Very few of the boys who saw service in the United States in 1898 saw any. You propose to give these nurses who are healthy enough to be able to work, and, according to this amendment, who may be very wealthy, $20 a month, while the soldier himself has to prove that he is unable to work before he can get a pension of $20 a month. You are going to place the nurse not on the same basis as the widow, but on a far better basis. You are going to place the nurse on a far better basis than the soldier himself who gave his service and his health to his country.

have the case of a comrade of mine who weighed 197 pounds when he went to Cuba who came back after 60 days weighing 147 pounds. He is now in a hospital in my home town with tuberculosis. He has seven children, and I have not been able to get him a pension up to date because the bureau says he is able to work.

I am in favor of legislation that will place the veterans of 1898 on the same basis-hospital, vocational education, compensation, and every other way-as the boys who won the late

I am going to vote for this bill, but I am very sorry that in the treatment of veterans and their wives and children it is not more liberal. I hope that the Senate will be more liberal than we have been.

How Congress Works.

SPEECH

HON. ANTHONY J. GRIFFIN,

OF NEW YORK,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Thursday, February 23, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 10559) making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce and Labor for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, and for other purposes.

Mr. GRIFFIN. Mr. Chairman, the highest compliment that can be paid to a bill is that members in the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union show no disposition to That being the case, I think that the chairman of this committee may justly feel very highly complimented. There seems to have been no disposition to criticize the bill. It is clear-cut, without legislation, increases of salaries, or any reatures provocative of opposition. Strange as it may seem, that is a highly desirable achievement. The House is so constituted, with its unwieldy membership and multiplicity of duties, that it is forced to rely upon its committees to conduct careful hearings, weigh the evidence, and to bring in bills capable of meeting the most rigid scrutiny.

In the time allotted to this measure we have wandered far afield, and I am not disappointed or annoyed by the fact. We have listened to a number of entertaining discussions of wide interest, but I think it might be well to come back for a few moments to this bill before the House. Its preparation involved long and careful hearings lasting a whole month, carried on every day in the week, including Saturdays, from 10.30 in the morning until after 5 in the evening. Sixteen bureaus in the Departments of Commerce and Labor were turned inside out and their operations exposed to almost microscopic exami-This examination has aroused in me amazement at the wonderful technical perfection of the various bureaus of this Government, and I am compelled to note in addition how loyal and sincere they are in the performance of their duties and obligations.

Another thing that impressed me in the hearings was the devotedness of those who were employed in the various bureaus, notwithstanding the mere pittance for which they are obliged to work. I was impressed particularly with one case in the Coast and Geodetic Survey. There were two men in that bureau who devised, thought out, and erected a mechanism to predict the tides. One of the men, a genius in his way, of splendid scientific and technical attainments, worked for less than you would pay the meanest laborer. -When he died he was receiving $2,200 a year. Congress has never appropriated a cent nobody, it seems, has ever thought of appropriating a little bonus for his family. And yet the machine he was instrumental in perfecting does the work of 60 computers and will save the Government millions of dollars.

This governmental attitude of closefistedness not only prevails toward the Coast and Geodetic Survey but toward Bureau of Standards, the Bureau of Lighthouses, and the Bureau of Fisheries. These are bureaus largely requiring men with college education or great technical experience; men capa-ble of entering into the most profound researches; yet many of the salaries are as low as $1,400 a year. We had to sit and listen to this arraignment of our picayune policy because we were helpless to do a thing to help them. We have not provided for any increase of salary for the reason that we did not have the power owing to the limitations placed on the Appropriation Committee, and we can only fervently hope that the reclassification bill, which will give some modicum of relief to these dewoted public servants, may soon be enacted into law.

This is an example of the work of one of the principal committees of the House. But the same work is going on in all the other committees. The Appropriation Committee consists of 35 members, the Ways and Means Committee of 25 members, and together these two committees have their hands upon the finances of the Nation. One committee raises the revenue and the other says how that revenue shall be expended. Both committees combined are nearly as large as the first Congress of the United States, the Congress fixed in the Constitution.

Now, why do I mention that? Because criticism is often heard that Congress is somewhat indifferent and takes no interest in legislation. The visitor to the gallery, if he comes here during a roll call, is not likely to have a very high opinion of the dignity of the body. If he comes on a day like to-day, in the discussion of a routine bill, he goes away with the impres-sion that there were in the House of Representatives of the great Republic perhaps fifty men legislating or passing upon the expenditure of millions of dollars. That is the impression, but it is not the fact. The legislation is actually done in committee, and if it is done well in committee there is no occasion for the great bulk of the Members of this House to sit here and listen to debate, because they each have their set obligations and official duties. For instance, the Ways and Means Committee and official duties. For instance, the ways and means Committee is holding hearings this afternoon; my colleague [Mr. Ollver] is at a hearing of the Committee on Military Affairs; the Naval Affairs Committee is sitting. Take the large committees of this House—the Appropriations Committee with 35 members; the Ways and Means Committee, 25 members; the Agricultural Committee, 22 members; the District of Columbia Committee, 21 members; the Judiciary Committee, 21 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 22 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 23 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 24 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 25 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 26 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 27 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 28 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 29 members; the Military Affairs Committee, 29 members the Military Affairs Committee, 29 members the Military Affairs Committee, 21 members the Military Affairs Committee, 22 members the Military Affairs Committee, 23 members the Military Affairs Committee, 24 members the Military Affairs Committee, 25 members the Military Affairs Committee, 25 members the Military Affairs Committee, 25 members the Military Affairs Committee, 27 members the M tary Affairs Committee, 21 members; the Naval Affairs Committee, 21 members; the Post Office and Post Roads Committee, 22 members. No member of these principal committees can sit on any other committee. These committees take out of this House 188 Members who have a complete allbi, and a perfect justification for not being here in Committee of the Whole while they are attending to the affairs of their respective committees. I go into this matter because I have been cutting out clippings from the newspapers containing criticisms of Congress in the last two years, and I find that even the newspaper men are not doing their part to enlighten the American public as to what Congress is doing or the work it accomplishes. They never touch upon the work going on in the various committees, the hearings of which are often illuminated by flashes of humor and by the clash of mental combat. They do not go into the work that Members do—I mean that silent, unobtrusive work without display—the hard, tedious work in the sanctum of the committee room, but they emphasize the flash work or the sensational things that happen here on the floor. If I were to get into a controversy with one of my friends here and say in a loud voice, "Come outside and settle our dispute," you would find the newspaper men would make a deak for the front rell of find the newspaper men would make a dash for the front rail of their gallery and to-morrow morning the papers would publish the episode on the front page with large headlines. Such news methods cultivate a contemptuous attitude toward Congress.

I venture to say that if you were to take a poll of our citizenship to-morrow they would say that representative government in the United States of America is a failure. Why? Because the work of Congress is misrepresented or ignored, and that accounts largely, in my opinion, for the growth of the bolshevistic spirit. Indeed, Mr. Chairman, I have heard speakers on the stump declare that even the American newspapers themselves admit that the American Congress is a failure and that representative government is a thing of the past. What do they want to substi-tute in its place? The soviet system of representation, where the carpenter, the tailor, the mill worker, the miner, the farmer. and other occupations shall be represented according to trade or calling. In other words, they would sink citizenship into the trade instead of apotheosizing the trade into glorious citizenship.

Gentlemen, it is up to all of us to make good; to do what we can to get rid of the notion that Congress idles and does not work, or that it does not fairly represent the constituencies from which its Members are elected.

Mr. HERRICK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GRIFFIN. - Yes.

Mr. HERRICK. Is it not a fact that the condition which the gentleman has just been describing is mainly brought about by the newspapers in an effort to create an atmosphere of sensa-

Mr. GRIFFIN. I think that is so. It is part of the tendency of the times. We are fond of jazz music, we like excitement, and it is quite natural that the newspapers should cater to the national appetite, although I would prefer to see them give a little more space to the saner and better things in life.

Mr. HERRICK. As a matter of fact, the encouragement of this brings a few extra pennies into their treasury, and that is all they care about. They are not caring for their country, but for their own treasury.

Mr. FESS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield? Mr. GRIFFIN. Yes.

Mr. FESS. I appreciate what the gentleman has said about the inability of the public to get what is actually done in the committees. Of course, our Record is such that it will not serve. Has the gentleman thought about the feasibility of Congress issuing an abstract of what work is done for general distribution, whether that is practicable or not, so that the actual work of the committees in abstract, and what is done in Congress, could be learned and such an abstract made the medium of information?

Mr. GRIFFIN. I have never thought of it, I will say to the gentleman, but I think it is a mighty fine idea. What Congress needs more than anything else is a good publicity agent.

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr. GRIFFIN.

Mr. GRIFFIN, Yes.
Mr. CONNALLY of Texas, Do I understand the gentleman from Ohio is approving the theory of Mr. Bryan, who wants a nonpartisan national publication?

Mr. FESS. I am not acquainted with what the gentleman refers to: However, I think that the Bureau of Information during the war did rather a commendable piece of work, and that bound is now a source of considerable valuable information covering that period. It is something of that sort that I had in mind.

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. Mr. Bryan advocates the publication of a paper by the Government, nonpartisan, telling just what happens in Congress, to be published for general distri-

Mr. GRIFFIN. I think it is a good idea. Mr. Chairman and Mr. GRIFTIN. I think it is a good idea. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, in conclusion I want also to point out one peculiar development in our progress. From humble beginnings, with a few departments and a few bureaus, we are developing a tendency toward bureaucracy, toward paternalism. That was illustrated more, perhaps, in the hearings before the subcommittee covering the Departments of Commerce and Labor, with their various bureaus, than in any other bill that has come before this House.

Mr. LAYTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GRIFFIN. Yes.

Mr. LAYTON. It may be an unkind question; I hope it is not; but how did the gentleman vote on the maternity bill?

Mr. GRIFFIN. I voted against it. Now, having qualified on that score, Doctor, I hope I may pass. However, I will not go into the subject of paternalism now. As Kipling says, "That is another story.'

MEMORIAL ADDRESS

HON. EDWARD B. ALMON, OF ALABAMA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Sunday, February 26, 1922.

The House had under consideration House Resolution 293, relating to the life, character, and public services of Hon. Samuel M. Taylor, late a Representative from the State of Arkansas.

Ar. ALMON. Mr. Speaker, it has been my pleasure to know Col. S. M. Taylor for the past 15 years. I first met him at Pine Bluff, Ark., while there on professional business. I learned then that he was not only a leading member of the bar but was greatly beloved and respected by his people. I afterwards met him at Hot Springs in 1911, where we spent three weeks at the same hotel. His mother was born in my district in Alabama, only a few miles from where I was born and reared, and that only a few miles from where I was born and reared, and that fact made me feel that he, too, was one of our people.

He came to Congress two years before I did. His course and record as a Member of this House are too well known to need any extended reference. He enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his colleagues to a marked degree. I visited him frequently during his illness and always found him bright and cheefful and deeply interested in the proceedings of the House. He frequently came to the House when he was not physically able to

He was what might be called a good family man, having at all times the comfort and happiness of his family at heart. He was not only deeply interested in the welfare of his constituents, but in all legislation of interest to the Nation at large.

The duties of the Members of the House have been so in-creased of recent years that we have but little time for social intercourse, and to become acquainted as we would like to, except as we are thrown together as members of the same com-However, I learned to know Colonel TAYLOR well and to appreciate his many good qualities, and I, together with other Members of the House, will greatly miss him. In his death his district has lost a most valued Representative and the Nation a wise and conservative lawmaker.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON,

Friday, May 5, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the Record and print the se-called "slacker lists" I desire to call attention to a letter from The Adjutant General's office, dated April 29, 1922.

It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake the names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the RECORD the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, April 29, 1922.

Hon. ROYAL C. JOHNSON,
House of Representatives.

House of Representatives.

My Dear Mr. Johnson: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for publication in the Congressional Record of May 5, 1922, lists of alleged draft deserters, which lists were released by the War Department for publication between March 5 and April 4, 1922, both dates inclusive. A copy of the statement to be printed at the head of the lists is also inclosed herewith.

There is also transmitted herewith, for insertion in the Congressional Record, a list of the names of registrants which have been removed from the lists of alleged draft deserters heretofore published in the Record, the reasons for such removals being set forth in the second paragraph of the statement which is to precede the lists in the Record.

Very respectfully,

ROBERT C. DAVIS,

ROBERT C. DAVIS, Acting The Adjutant General.

The following names have been removed from the lists of alleged draft deserters heretofore published in the Congres-SIGNAL RECORD since the publication of such names:

LOCAL BOARD FOR THE COUNTY OF WINDHAM, VT.

133 John J. Wilkins, 317 South Main, Brattleboro, Vt. (Cedar Grove, N. C.).

The men whose names appear below, and who were under the jurisdiction of the local board named, were, according to the public draft records, classified and reported by the draft author-ities as deserters from the military service of the United States. The lists in which these names were originally included have been given at least one month's publicity.

The name of any man who since the publication of the lists has been found to have actually rendered service in either our own forces or in those of the Allies during the period between May 18, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is not included, nor is that of any man who, though he rendered no service during the period mentioned has since the publication of his name been found to have been erroneously inducted or to have been erroneously certified as a deserter, nor that of any man who is known to be no longer living.

Every reasonable effort has been made by the War Department to eliminate from these lists names which for any of the aforementioned reasons should not appear thereon. Should it develop, however, that certain of the names listed below should for any of these reasons likewise be removed, notice to that effect will be published in each such case in a later issue of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Antilynching Bill.

This bill proposes to uphold the laws and the courts of the land and deter persons from mob violence and to give to the humblest citizens of the land the full protection of the law.

HON. JOHN M. ROBSION,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, January 25, 1923.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 13) to assure to persons within the jurisdiction of every State the equal protection of the laws, and to punish the crime of lynching.

Mr. ROBSION. Mr. Chairman, I have listened to more than three score speeches in the House on this antilynching bill. These speeches have been made by Republicans, Democrats, and Mr. London, the Socialist from New York. The speakers have come from every State in the Union. The sentiments of the North, the South, the East, and the West have been expressed. Every speaker without exception has denounced lynching and mob rule in unmeasured terms. Every speaker has declared that lynching and mob rule were the greatest menaces to law and order, to our courts, to our civilization, and to the life of the Republic. In all these speeches from Republicans and Democrats, north, south, east, and west, not one Member has speken one word approving lynching or mob rule.

President Wilson during his term of office, and his Attorney General likewise, denounced lynchings and mob rule and pointed out the dangers to our country unless they were stopped. He and his Attorney General in a public statement called upon the country without regard to section or party to take steps to restrain the mob spirit and banish lynching from our country.

Every public speaker and every writer that has discussed this subject in this country, so far as I have knowledge, has denounced lynching.

We have had some lynchings in the State of Kentucky in the last few years, but all of our daily newspapers, the Louisville Herald, Louisville Post. Courier Journal, Lexington Herald, Lexington Leader, Louisville Times, and other newspapers have, with one voice, denounced this crime. This has been true of public officials of the State of Kentucky and leading men of our State regardless of politics.

Every reputable newspaper and magazine, both North and South, East and West, in this country have likewise denounced lynching as a crime against society and warned the American people of the growing power and danger to the very life of our Republic. It was considered of such moment that the Republican National Convention assembled at Chicago in 1920 put a plank in its platform pledging the Republican Party to enact legislation to protect the citizens of this country against lynching and mob violence. President Harding in his message to Congress has appealed to the Congress to provide a Federal law to deal with lynchings.

Every thoughtful, law-abiding citizen must have long realized that something must be done somewhere and somehow to check the growth of mob spirit in this country.

ALL OF US ARE OFFOSED TO CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN.

When all the Members of this House, President Wilson, President Harding, and the American press denounce lynching and mob rule, it does not mean they indorse crimes against women, murder, or any other crime for which men and women might have been lynched. There is not a man in this House but what looks with horror upon the crime of rape. To me rape is an unspeakable crime. I feel that every man, either black or white, who is guilty of such crime should be put to death, and this is true as to many of the atroclous crimes of murder. There is just as much consideration and respect for womanhood in one party as another, or in one section of the country as another. All of the chivalry or gallantry is not in the Republican Party or in the Democratic Party or in the North or in the South. Any man who is a half man desires more than anything to see the womanhood of this country not only protected but respected.

THE LAW AND THE COURTS SHOULD BE SUPREME.

Our forefathers sacrificed their fortunes and their lives for our country and in order to establish a Constitution, laws, and courts. Our Federal Constitution and our State constitutions provide that every person charged with crime is entitled to a fair, impartial trial and to be confronted by his accusers. The mob in its wild spirit of frenzy and hate is the accuser, the arresting officer, the jury, the prosecutor, the court, and the executioner.

The victim is denied all of his rights under the laws and the Constitution. No member of any mob would think it right or fair to himself to be tried and executed under circumstances like that. Every member of any mob in his own particular case would demand a fair and impartial trial as provided by the laws of the country.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN LYNCHED.

If the lynchers would confine their killings to men who were guilty of rape, there might be some excuse to continue the practice, but the truth is that the mobs have lynched many women and children in this country. Only about one out of six of the persons who have been lynched in this country have even been accused of crimes against women, and in many instances it turned out that the person accused was not guilty. Many Negroes of the South have been lynched on very trivial charges.

From 1889 to 1921, 3,486 persons have been lynched in the United States. Only 570 of these were charged with rape or attempted rape. Of the number who were lynched, there were about 70 women, and there were also some children. Both white and colored women were lynched. The following table will show the number of persons lynched in the several States:

State.	Number of lynch- ings, 1889-1918.	Number of lynch- ings, 1918-21.	Total lynched.	Number of women lynched.
Georgia	387 373	43 32	429 405	6 12
Texas Louisiana Alabama	335 313 276	19 13 16	354 326 292	4 7
Arkansas	214 179 196	17 23 3	231 201 199	5 2 1

Missouri	81 78 53	4 2 10	85 80 63

Only 16.6 per cent of the persons lynched as set out in this table were charged with rape. Many of the persons lynched were burned alive. The bodies of others were burned after they had been slain, some were drowned and others shot or beaten to death. The following article from the Memphis Press indicates the brutality of some of these lynchings. It refers to the lynching of Henry Lowery, a negro charged with murder. He was burned at Nodena, Ark., January 27, 1921. This paper gives the following account:

This paper gives the following account:

More than 500 persons stood by and looked on while the negro was slowly burned to a crisp. A few women were among the crowd of Arkansas planters. Not once did the man beg for mercy, despite the fact he suffered one of the most terrible deaths imaginable. With the negro chained to a log, members of the mob placed a small pile of leaves around his feet. Gasoline was then poured on the leaves, and the carrying out of the feath sentence was under way.

Inch by inch the negro was fairly cooked to death. Every few minutes fresh leaves were placed on the fire until the blaze was past the negro's waist. Even after the flesh had dropped away from his legs and the flames were leaping toward his face, Lowery retained consciousness. Not once did he whimper or beg for mercy. Once or twice he attempted to pick up the hot ashes in his hand and thrust them in his mouth in order to hasten his death. Each time the ashe were kicked out of his reach by members of the mob. As the flames were eating away his abdomen, a member of the mob stepped forward and saturated his body with gasoline. It was then only a few minutes the negro had been reduced to ashes. Words fail to describe the suffering of the negro. Even after his legs had been reduced to bones, he continued to talk with his captors.

I offer no excuse for crime for white or black, but would it

I offer no excuse for crime for white or black, but would it not have been much better for the lynchers, for that com-munity, and for our country had this man been tried in an orderly way and put to death as provided by law, if he deserved death under the law? He was a poor, friendless wretch. He would have been tried by a white jury, before white officials, and upon the testimony of white witnesses, and, of course, there would have been no doubt of the result had he been proven

Most of the lynchings are in the Southern States. The black man in every instance is tried by white people. As a rule, he is poor; and if he is guilty there certainly will be no trouble in convicting him and giving him such punishment as he merits

The following is a headline in the Chattanooga Daily Times, January 28, 1921, in speaking of the lynching of this man

BARBARISM A NATIONAL CRIME.

The lynching of the negro, Henry Lowery, by an Arkansas mob near Nodena, in that State, an account of which appeared in these columns Thursday morning, was accomplished with something more of diabolism than usually attends such lawless outbreaks. There have been frequent instances of burning victims, but it has usually been done after death. In this instance the man was bound to a heap of dry timber, his body saturated with kerosene, and then burned and tortured until death ended his agony. The Governor of Arkansas has made some perfunctory remarks about the enormity of the crime, and threatens an investigation, but that will be about all there will be to it.

It has long since ceased to be said that these mobs are made up of vagabonds, toughs, bums, and vicious idlers—this one was, apparently, composed of determined and responsible men, respected in the communities where they live and altogether representative of the sentiment of their neighbors. State authority will, therefore, hardly reach them.

In such circumstances a great impulse will be given to the movement for a Federal law against this crime. There will be those who, while objecting to Federal interference in purely State affairs, will not be long in concluding that there may be a Federal issue in the preservation of the civilization of the Republic. The most ardent State-righter will hardly dispute the statement that burning human beings at the stake is barbarous, inhuman, savage, and un-American. The Federal Government may, without offense, declare that such practices are repugnant to the spirit and the soul of the Republic, and that those who indulge them are outlaws and cnemies of their country and its institutions. Treason is a national offense, and so may burning human creatures at the stake come to be a crime such as treason. Lynch law run mad, as the stake come to be a crime such as treason. Lynch law run mad, as the stake come to be a crime such as treason. Lynch law run mad, as the stake come to be a crime such as treason. Lynch law run mad

The Nation may, therefore, decide that it may, without violating the rights of any State, take cognizance of this pagan savagery and provide a penalty for it so drastic and severe as to render it exceedingly dangerous for future mobs to indulge it.

This article in the Chattanooga Times, a Democratic newspaper, points out that the Federal Government may without offense declare that such practices are repugnant to the spirit and the soul of the Republic, and that those who indulge in them are outlaws and enemies of their country and its institutions, and to consider such crimes as treason against this country and an assault upon the civilization of the American people. The mob takes the place of the law, the officers, and the courts. The mob overturns the law, the officers, and the courts, and this is treason in a small way. Of course, if mob rule should be extended and its scope widened it might overturn the States or overthrow the Republic. The mob is anarchy in action, and for these reasons the lawmakers, Presidents Wilson and Harding, and the public press of the country denounce lynching as one of the great menaces to this Republic. The mob denies to citizens the guaranties provided in the State and Federal Consti-tutions. The mob for the time nullifies the law and overturns the courts.

IS THERE ANY RELIEF?

There are more lynchings in the United States than in any There are more tynchings in the United States than in any other civilized country of the world. We boast of our civilization, yet we are not able to give to our citizens the rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution. Every Member of this House recognizes the danger of mob rule. They agree that it is wrong in principle. They all agree it should be stopped, and it is practically agreed that the States have been unable to control this character of crime. Many Southern States have passed antilynching laws, yet lynching continues unabated. All Members of the House, both Democrats and Republicans, agree that lynching is a crime against the State and the Nation, and it should be stopped. Up to this point Democrats and Republicans agree. A majority of the Democrats in the House say that nothing can be done and that the Federal Government is powerless to carry out the mandate of the Federal Constitution in guaranteeing to every citizen the equal protection of the law. The Democrats say that Congress is powerless to check this evil; and while the Democrats say that they are against lynching and that lynching is a heinous crime, with the exception of the Hon. Ben Johnson, of Kentucky, and a few Democrats in the North and East, the Democrats have fought this bill with every power at their command. They have tried every way possible to defeat this legislation.

REPUBLICANS UNDERTAKE TO FIND REMEDY.

The Republican side of the House is unwilling to admit that the greatest Nation of the world, with a population of nearly 110,000,000 people, leading the world in schools, churches, and homes, in commerce, industry, and government, and having solved all the great problems that have come to us through nearly a century and a half, are unable to solve this problem and to correct this great evil. While the bill before us is not all it should be, yet we think it is a step in the right direction. The Republicans are willing to make an honest effort to Solve this problem. When the people know that the Federal Government will investigate and help prosecute men guilty of lynching and mob violence, it will go a long way toward checking these crimes.

OPPOSED TO TWO PEATURES.

While I favor this legislation, yet I can not give my assent to sections 5 and 6 of the bill as they are drawn. I think the $10,000 damages should only be recovered from the persons engaged in the lynching. I think to require this damage to be paid by the taxpayers of any particular county will render the law unpopular and help to defeat its enforcement. I am willing for the guilty parties to be punished and to bear the burden of the days to the law to the transfer. the damages. Again, I think that part of the bill that permits a recovery from the county or counties through which the lynched person might be taken or in which he may be lynched without the knowledge of the officers of such county would not be sustained by the courts.

Under the bill as drawn the lynchers, as has been done in many cases, might take a man from the jail or officers in one county and in high-powered cars pass through several counties before reaching the point where the victim might be lynched. They would pass through these counties at night. No one would know about it and no one could with reasonable care anticipate such visit, and they might lynch the man in a county remote from the crime without the knowledge of the officers or the people of such county. I do not think the tax-payers of such county or counties should be required to pay damages in the sum of $10,000. These features of the bill, in my opinion, are unconstitutional, and I shall vote for the emendment cutting out these sections as they are drawn. No rounty should be held in damages for the act of the people from some other county when they had no knowledge of the crime and the people and officers of the county could not by the exercise of ordinary care have known that the victim would be brought through their county or lynched in their county, or prevented the lynching. I think these provisions in the bill, if they should be written into the law, will render the law obnoxious and help to defeat the very purpose of this legislation. I not only favor this legislation but I favor the most effective legislation that might be enacted that will be fair and just to all the people and which will uphold the laws and the courts.

PROTECT THE LINCHERS AS WELL AS THE LINCHED.

Many good citizens have been drawn into mobs and their whole lives clouded and destroyed. I favor this legislation in order to uphold the law and the courts and to deter men, if possible, from joining mobs or lynching parties, and to give to every man in this country a fair and impartial trial.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT ACTS IF STATE FAILS TO ACT.

Under the provisions of this bill the State courts are given an opportunity and the right to punish the members of the mob who may lynch any individual, and if the State courts fail to act and bring the perpetrators to justice within 30 days the Federal courts may take jurisdiction of the case and prosecute the offenders, and upon proper showing assess damages. think this will keep many good men and will deter most men from entering into this sort of a crime or becoming a member of any mob. If this law keeps most men out of lynchings and mob violence, it will accomplish much for them and at the same time uphold the laws and the courts of this country and give to each and every citizen full and equal protection of the law.

PRHEDOM AND PROTECTION FOR ALL.

Our Democratic friends in their platforms and their speeches have said much about the freedom of the black man and the rights of the black men and the yellow man and in giving democracy to the people of the Philippines and other parts of the world. Of course I want to see all people enjoy all of the freedom that they are entitled to enjoy, but I am more con-cerned in giving equal and full protection of the laws to the humblest citizen in our country. To my way of thinking murder or the crime against women is no less a crime when committed by a white man than when committed by a black man. The criminal of no color or class should receive immunity. The criminals of all colors and classes should be punished according to their crimes, and the humblest ettizen of our land should be given all of the rights guaranteed to him by the Constitution of the United States and the State in which he

SPEECH

HON. STUART F. REED. OF WEST VIRGINIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Friday, April 14, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11228) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 80, 1923, and for other purposes.

Mr. REED of West Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I move to amend the section by striking out the last word.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from

Mr. REED of West Virginia. Mr. Chairman, I have not allowed myself to become blinded to actual conditions or stampeded into a change of convictions by the letters that have just been read, revealing, as I view it, the desires and hopes of experts and naval officers who want the largest naval establishment possible under the most liberal interpretation of the recent treaty. If this House means simply to comply with the directions of the experts, why take up the time in further considering the bill. I for one feel that I have a duty to perform. I want all the information on the subject which the experts can give, and then I shall vote for what I feel is just to the people whom I represent.

shall support the bill as the committee has reported it. I heartly approve their findings relative to the size of the Navy. The bill has the support of the chairman of the Appropriations Committee and the chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee. These able men have gone into every phase of the question. We know them to be 100 per cent Americans, and know they would not advocate legislation that in any particular tended to lower the standards of the Republic. The report they have made is deserving of most earnest consideration.

The question before us is an amendment to the committee bill increasing the enlisted personnel of the Navy by 19,000 men. There is no disagreement as to maintaining the full treaty fleet of 18 battleships and other necessary auxiliary vessels. about all in accord as to the officer personnel of the Navy. But when it comes to adding over 19,000 men and increasing the annual cost of the Navy from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000-and no one has so far been able to justify such a course-I propose to take a stand in the interest of an overburdened and long-suffering tax-ridden people. They have been promised relief. They saw a rainbow of hope when the great Conference on Limitation of Armament announced its momentous, and world-embracing agreements.

What will the American people think when they are informed that our treaty Navy in an era of peace will cost them over a million dollars a day? That is exactly where this proposed amendment is leading.

The bill before us calls for an expenditure of $233,000,000. If the amendment is adopted, it will add about $50,000,000 more. But let us not forget that this bill does not cover all the activities of the Naval Establishment.

The chairman of the Appropriations Committee has just called attention to some of them.

There is a bill pending here to-day for increased pay for the Navy which will mean, when passed, $15,000,000 more. There is a bill pending for $8,000,000 for the Navy for Air Service construction. That will have to be added to this bill. There is a bill pending, or one that will be pending, for the cancellation of the contracts due to the conference limitation, which requires the cessation of construction on several battleships now under That will cost $75,000,000 more.

Figure it up yourselves, my colleagues, and you will find it runs far in excess of a million dollars a day for the Navy alone. Mr. Chairman, the Conference on Limitation of Armament called by our great President was the consummate blossoming of 1,000 years of man's aspiration to square his deeds by the mystic touch of the "better angels of his nature." In his matchless address on the 12th day of November, 1921, calling the conference to order, President Harding said:

Out of the cataclysm of the World War came new fellowships, new convictions, new aspirations. It is ours to make the most of them. A world staggering with debt needs its burden lifted. Humanity which has been shocked by wanton destruction would minimize the agencies of that destruction. Contemplating the measureless cost of war and the continuing burden of armament, all thoughtful peoples wish for real limitation of armament and would like war cutlawed. In soberest reflection the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war wish their attessmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after.

In a few weeks the conference had finished its work and unanimously adopted its wonderful and far-reaching declarations, and the President was called to say a-parting word. May I quote a few sentences from that speech to the delegates?

You have written the first deliberate and effective expression of great powers, in the consciousness of peace, of war's utter futility, and challenged the sanity of competitive preparation for each other's destruction. You have halted folly and litted burdens, and revealed to the world that the one sure way to recover from the sorrow and ruin and staggering obligations of a World War is to end the strife in preparation for more of it, and turn human energies to the constructiveness of peace.

I had fondly hoped, Mr. Chairman, that in fixing the size of our Navy under the trenty we would not haggle and split hairs in an endeavor to make the personnel as large as possible.

What is the reason for such action?

What nation do we fear at this time?

Europe is bankrupt. Her domain is dotted with new-made graves, and we certainly have not offended nor do we mean to offend any people. Our whole attitude has been one of sympathy and helpfulness. It has been said we need a strong Navy to prevent any attempted invasion of our territory.

England has the only Navy that equals ours. Do we fear an English invasion? Then, why are we leaving that international from British territory without a fort, a war vessel, or a mounted gun? It has been an imaginary line separating peaceful neighbors for over a century.

A little while ago I was talking to a Canadian statesman in the House of Parliament at Ottawa, and he remarked how fortunate it had been that we had no guns along that line. "If there had been forts," said he, "some infernal fool might have fired a reckless shot and gotten us into war." Why do we need so many men in the Navy? We are keeping the required number of ships. We can get extra men in 24 hours, but it takes a long time to build battleships. The committee has provided in this bill for an average of over 1,000 men for each of the 18 capital ships. That is more than they had on them when the treaty was concluded. Now, it is claimed they need about 200 more men for each ship, yet no one has shown such increase to be necessary. In a crew of 1,000 men can be found all the expert seamen, navigators, engineers, electricians, gunners, radio operators, and so forth, that would be needed in peace times. If these vessels required more men in the event of war, the extra men would be mere helpers, assistant electricians, steam, fitters, pointage, and apparent. sistant electricians, steam fitters, painters, and repair men. The country is full of such labor, available at all times

Another argument advanced is that we need an increased force because England has some vessels that are speedier than ours. In God's name, does the gentleman think a warship would develop additional speed by placing 100 or 200 more men on it? The question of speedier vessels is one that is to be taken care of in the new ships that are later to take the place of some of the 18 in the fleet.

Does anyone think that an enemy ship would regard one of our ships an easy prey because its peace personnel was only 1,000 men? Ah, my friends, the commander of the enemy ship would know that our 1,000 were of the Nation of men that invented the steamboat, the forerunner of all navies. He would recall that under the American flag are the sailors whose countrymen originated the airplane that flies with the eagle and the submarine that moves in ocean depths amid the monsters of the deep. He would know the American ship was manned by experts whose countrymen gave the world the telephone and telegraph. In a sentence, the enemy commander would know that he was about to go up against 1,000 men proud of a lineage and history unequaled in the traditions of navies and armies—Americans. [Loud applause.]

Do not misunderstand me, my colleagues, I want to give our Navy every sort of equipment the treaty specifies, but I do not want to go beyond that. The taxpaying people are sick of war and its awful carnage and waste.

If we could recover the amount of money invested in just 2 of our 18 treaty battleships, we could build a $500,000 college building in each State of the Union and have enough money left to give each of the colleges an endowment fund of $1,000,000. With the cost of the entire 18 ships available, we could duplicate that work nine times.

Mr. Chairman, I am about to make a statement that is appalling to me, and I wonder if the people of the United States comprehend its significance. The statisticians of the Bureau of Standards have just reported an accurate analysis of the expenditures of the Government for 1920. It shows that 93 per cent of our vast expenditures are war costs. To state it in a different way, out of every $1,000 paid by the people in taxes the sum of $930 went for obligations arising either from past wars or for preparation for possible future wars. Three per cent, or $30, of the $1,000 went for general governmental purposes; $30 went for public works; and $10 for education, research, and development of the race.

Have we a hope, my friends, that the Conference on Limitation of Armament is a step toward getting away from the cost of wars? Even if we carry out in a modest way the terms of the 10-year treaty our Navy alone will cost us during that period approximately $3,000,000,000. My good friend over there is thinking that I know but little about this subject. As an expert on naval affairs I am sure I could not qualify: No part of my district borders on ocean or lake, and there are no large rivers. Some one has said that my district in West Virginia is so dry that bullfrogs can be found 11 years old that have not learned to swim. [Laughter.]

But it does not take a naval expert to interpret the longings of a people whose war burdens are 93 per cent of the total cost

The people are calling for relief. Progress is delayed by exorbitant taxes and high railroad transportation rates. gress should speedily do all in its power to give relief,

I can appreciate the sentiment that is being created by the men whose lives have been dedicated to the problems of national defense. I am fond of these men. I am proud of their achieve-ments. I have no word of censure because they want big things. They are devoted to their calling. Their environment and training spurs them on. They dream of battles and fleets. must get the proper perspective and do what is best for my

I know it sounds fine to relate to the youth of our Nation the wonderful story of the American Navy. The distinguished gen-tleman from Tennessee, formerly chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, is reluctant to see us turn aside from building a Navy that will become supreme on the ocean waves. He recalls the long struggle to build up our Navy, the pride the people have in its history and achievements, and urges an enlargement over the recommendations of the committee that will cost many millions of dollars.

The genial and eloquent Member from Boston [Mr. Gallivan] wants a Naval Establishment even larger and costlier than the big Navy advocates are pleading for to-day. He trembles with emotion as he expresses his fears that a $300,000,000 naval program will not link us up with our glorious past, and as a result our schoolboys will be deprived of the inspiration to patriotic duty, because our Navy will no longer do honor to the deeds of heroism of John Paul Jones, Admiral Farragut, and the "modest but immortal Dewey."

I join my good friend in singing the praises of these great American naval heroes, but I would remind him that just a single one of the 18 battleships provided for in this bill is more powerful than were the fleets of either Jones or Farragut or that earlier line of American ships that whipped Tripoli and swept piracy from the high seas. Those matchless men, with their little wooden vessels, won the plaudits of the world and gave a new luster to the escutcheon of our Republic. In the traditions of a great land-in poem, song, and story-these heroes, and even their ships, are immortalized.

Are we by this bill retaining and equipping a Navy that will not dim the memory of Dewey? Ah, my colleagues, it is with pardonable pride we recall the achievements of the Navy during the administration of William McKinley.

Our total appropriation for the Navy in 1897 was, in round numbers, $34,000,000; and that was the Navy of Dewey and Schley and Sampson—the Navy that sent the Spanish fleets to the bottom of the sea and shattered every timber in the Spanish ship of state without the loss of an American seaman or ship. To-day Congress is authorizing the maintenance of a Naval Establishment costing for next year practically ten times as much as the Navy that added such a glorious chapter to our

Coming down to the beginning of the World War, we find the Naval Establishment functioning then—1916—with the same number of battleships that we are to have under the terms of the recent treaty, at a cost of less than $150,000,000. Surely with no enemy in sight the naval officers and experts can get along on a $300,000,000 peace basis next year.

The American people voiced a mighty approval of the President's lofty sentiments, already quoted. Shall we disappoint dent's lofty sentiments, already quoted. Shall we disappoint them in the results that are to follow? I have confidence in the ability of our admirals and our able Secretary of the Navy to take this very liberal appropriation and maintain a Naval Establishment reflecting the genius of a great people and in full conformity to the ratio agreed upon by the Conference on Limitation of Armament, [Prolonged applause.]

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. WILLIAM E. ANDREWS, OF NEBRASKA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, April 19, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11228) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, and for other purposes.

Mr. ANDREWS of Nebraska. Mr. Chairman, the report shows a disagreement in the committee on this bill. members of the committee 6 have taken issue with the committee bill. Thus we have 29 to 6 in favor of the committee bill. It is reasonable to assume that the 29 members of the committee have been equally diligent with the 6 in ascertaining the facts and framing the bill that will harmonize with the 5-5-3 treaty agreement. Those that have spoken in support of the committee bill have done it on the ground that it grants the necessary amount. Those who have opposed the bill have seldom mentioned economy, which is a fundamental duty of the hour. I shall cast my lot in favor of the majority report with 29 of the committee, as against the 6 who oppose the bill. But under the five-minute rule I shall seek an opportunity to express my views upon this measure.

I have no desire to embarrass the Navy Department or the Navy in any manner whatever. We need not look to them for economy. If we count upon them for economy we will never secure it. But believing that this retrenchment can be safely made, and therefore should be made, I shall cast my vote for the committee bill.

A large majority of the Appropriations Committee assure me that 67,000 enlisted men will be sufficient to manage the 5-5-3 treaty Navy efficiently in time of peace. In support of that proposition they tell us that the Navy Department has hereto-fore handled a larger number of ships than would be required under the 5-5-3 treaty Navy with an enlisted personnel of only 51,000. Accepting that fact as correctly established there seems to be no reasonable doubt that the treaty Navy can be managed efficiently in peace times with 67,000 enlisted men. That number would give them 16,000 more than they had employed to operate efficiently a larger number of ships heretofore in time of peace.

The proposition fixing the personnel at 86,000 would add 19,000 to the number proposed in the committee bill. That addition would increase the expenses of the Navy for the next fiscal year $40,000,000 beyond the figure required by the committee bill. Other items would also be added necessarily as indicated in the course of the debate. Thus it is clearly disindicated in the course of the debate. Thus it is clearly disclosed that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. McArthur] would increase the expenditures for the next fiscal year approximately $60,000,000. Thus far no manifest necessity has been disclosed in support of that course of procedure.

Holding steadily in mind the necessity for retrenchment and economy in every possible way, I shall vote for the committee bill and thus avoid an additional increase of expense to the extent of $60,000,000 for 1923.

Without money in the National Treasury you can not load the guns, you can not hire the men, you can not build the ships, and you can not fly in the air. The fundamental proposition is that the Army and the Navy must hold close to their base of supplies and the Nottenel Treasury in the processory base. supplies, and the National Treasury is the necessary base. You can not persuade the Army and the Navy officers to economize for the taxpayers of the United States and the National Treasury. You will never get economy along that line, but must get it in some other way.

I recognize that the committee bill rests upon a peace basis. Of course, a war basis would require a larger enlisted personnel. Of course, a war basis would require a larger enlisted personnel. If, as some urge, 86,000 men is the correct number to reflect the maximum of the 5-5-3 treaty Navy, let that be incorporated into the law in a legislative bill. Then the appropriation bills on a peace basis, as they are ordinarily made, can apply practical economy, and under the legislative bill with a higher enlisted personnel the department can readily expand into war activities. This is now indepent would be the proper arrangement for the This, in my judgment, would be the proper arrangement for the legislative bill on the one hand and the appropriation bill on

The committee bill seems to be drawn with this principle in mind. It is the correct principle, especially at this time while our Treasury is struggling with financial burdens.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON,

Monday, June 5, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the Record and print the so-called "slacker lists," I desire to call attention to a letter from The Adjutant General's office, dated June 1, 1922.

It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the RECORD the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, June 1, 1922.

Hon. ROYAL C. JOHNSON,
House of Representatives.

House of Representatives.

MY DBAE MR. JOHNSON: I have the honor to transmit herewith for publication in the Congressional Record of June 6, 1922, lists of alleged draft deserters, which lists were released by the War Department for publication between April 5 and May 4, 1922, both dates inclusive. A copy of the statement to be printed at the head of the lists is also inclosed herewith.

There is also transmitted herewith for insertion in the Congressional Record a list of the names of registrants which have been removed from the list of alleged draft deserters heretofore published in the Record, the reasons for such removals being set forth in the second paragraph of the statement which is to precede the lists in the Record, Very respectfully,

Acting The Adjutant General.

The men whose names appear below, and who were under the jurisdiction of the local board named, were, according to the public draft records, classified and reported by the draft authorities as deserters from the military service of the United The lists in which these names were originally included have been given at least one month's publicity.

The name of any man-who, since the publication of the lists, has been found to have actually rendered service in either our own forces or in those of the Allies during the period between May 18, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is not included, nor is that of any man who, though he rendered no service during the period mentioned, has since the publication of his name been found to have been erroneously inducted or to have been erroneously certified as a deserter, nor that of any man who is known to be no longer living.

Every reasonable effort has been made by the War Department to eliminate from these lists names which, for any of the aforementioned reasons, should not appear thereon. Should it develop, however, that certain of the names listed below should for any of these reasons likewise be removed, notice to that effect will be published in each such case in a later issue of the Congressional RECORD.

HON. WILLIAM D. UPSHAW. OF GEORGIA.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Saturday, December 17, 1921.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 9548) for the relief of the distressed and starving people of Russia.

Mr. UPSHAW. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, as long as I keep my senses—

SEVERAL MEMBERS. How long? [Laughter and applause.]
Mr. UPSHAW. And my patriotism [applause] I never expect to vote for any measure that will take bread out of the mouth of any hungry American man, weman, or child, and if this bill did that I would not vote for it. But it does not do that. It is natural for us to think of home and to think of our own unemployed, and I declare myself heartily in favor of any and every measure that would tend to relieve the distress at home. But we face a condition and not a theory, as brought out strongly by the President in his address to the Congress. I love my State better than any other State. I love my section better than any other section. I love my country better than any other country, but I do not want to love my State or section or country so well as to make me forget to help any suffering, starving human being in all God's world. [Applause.] Naturally, we think of Armenia.

I wish Armenia could be included in this immediate help. I wish Armenia could be included in this similedate help. We think of that whole section over there where starving millions are suffering and dying in a great waste of desolation. And do you know what I think? I really believe that this great conference for the world's peace, whose purposes I indorse, would add to its own self-respect, and also the respect of the world, if it were to determine before it breaks up to come together and take Turkey by the nape of the neck and declare to that nation, that has caused so much sorrow, horror, and hell among the civilized nations of the world, that they will wipe it off the face of the earth if it ever perpetrates any more barbarous cruelty upon the smaller nations round about that honor the cross and refuse to bow to the crescent of Mahomet.

Mahomet.

Mr. McSWAIN.

Mr. UPSHAW.

J do.

Mr. McSWAIN.

Suppose the world's disarmament that my friend is preaching about is established. How will you wipe Turkey off the face of the earth?

Mr. UPSHAW.

Do It before they disarm. [Laughter and continued to the continued to th applause.] I want to say this—

Mr. WINGO. Will the gentleman yield? I want to know—
I am somewhat interested in this amendment—is the gentleman for or against the sending of the flour?

Mr. UPSHAW. Both. [Laughter.] That is, I am in favor of flour and grain.

Mr. BEGG. Somebody suggested this was a flour amendment and not a Turkey amendment.

Mr. UPSHAW. Well, I understand that, but I do not think the Turkey I am talking about will mix with any kind of Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for one extra minute to make up for the time these genial gentle-men have just used. I declare this. Nothing I said in the oath I took at this patriotic shrine will keep me from voting for doing anything that I believe will add to the luster of America's name abroad and that will bring life, hope, and happiness to suffering humanity. [Applause.]

Reducing the Cost-The Time Is Now.

If we are ever going to reduce the cost of "the scientific destruction of human life," the time to begin is new.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM D. UPSHAW. OF GEORGIA.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, April 19, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11228) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, and for other purposes.

Mr. UPSHAW. Mr. Chairman, throughout this long debate the spirit, as the gentleman from Michigan said, has been strikingly beautiful on both sides. I have not spoken thus far. partly due to the fact that I have been ill for a part of the time. but I think it a good thing to remind the House in these closing moments of that immortal sentence attered by the President of the United States in his notable speech at the disarmament conference. President Harding said:

There is something radically wrong with any system of civilization that spends the greater part of its money annually on the scientific destruction of human life.

I honor the high-class naval officers who have given the greater part of their lives to the study of this question. They have been unfailing in their courtesles to me in my every official conference with them.

Secretary Denby, a statesman in peace as well as a hero in war; Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, worthy son of an immortal sire; and Admiral Thomas Washington, the genial genius at the head of the Bureau of Navigation—all, all have proven that great officials can be great-hearted gentlemen at every angle of contact. But, honest as they are in their forceful contention for the larger Navy, I must be allowed the exercise of my privilege and my duty as a citizen and as a legislator to do some thinking and voting for myself. I honestly believe that the smaller Navy proposed for our suffrage is absolutely simple for our needs in peace and an ample nucleus for our larger activities in the event of war. Patrick Henry, with tongue of flame,

Three million people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as this which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemies can send against us.

And I declare now that one hundred and ten millions of people, dedicating their patriotism to the threatened flag of our reunited country, will answer any time and anywhere our President's "call to the colors," without the necessity of our maintaining in peace a big Army and Navy with their stag-gering burden of expense. More than 90 cents out of every dollar of the people's money, spent to provide for the burdens of war—past, present, and to come—is an unthinkable anomaly in our boasted Christian civilization.

If we are ever going to act in consonance with the President's advice in his notable disarmament speech and reduce our investments in "the scientific destruction of human life," the time to begin is now! [Applause.]

Delinquent Internal Revenue Business-Commissioner Blair Asks for Ten Additional Collectors of Internal Revenue to Transact Business Belonging to Expert Accountants.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM E. ANDREWS,

OF NEBRASKA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Thursday, May 4, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 10877) to permit an increase in the number of internal revenue collection districts and in the number of collectors of internal revenue.

Mr. ANDREWS of Nebraska. Mr. Chairman, it is proposed to clear up delinquent work by appointing 10 additional collectors of internal revenue. I will venture the prediction that if you appoint 10 additional collectors of internal revenue, not one of them will do anything with the delinquent work now on the docket. What kind of service do you need to clear up that delinquent work? You need trained expert accountants to do

Auditors. We have already given them 800. Mr. ANDREWS of Nebraska. That is true, and they said that would be enough. Now they want 10 additional full collection districts. Why, the district officer does not handle this work. In 1913 the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue in the District of Columbia cost $358,000.

The salary roll for 1921 cost nearly $12,000,000, and for the whole field service it cost $34,000,000. The act of 1918 provided for the collection of $6,000,000,000 in revenue for 1919, of $4,000,000,000 in 1920 and subsequent years. In 1921 we passed a law proposing a reduction of that amount by nearly a billion Why do we need an increase of 10 districts with only one-half the business?

Read the letter addressed by Secretary Mellon to the chair-man of the House Committee on Ways and Means on April 18, 1922, in support of this bill. It seems to have been drafted with the deliberate purpose of deceiving the very elect. It says:

In 10 years the number of taxpayers filing returns with collectors of ternal revenue has increased from less than 600,000 to an aggregate more than 10,000,000 annually.

Another sentence in the report reads as follows:

The total number of transactions with the 10,652,704 taxpayers who filed returns in 1921 was then 20,000,000.

Another sentence reads as follows:

This remarkable increase in the number of people who have transactions with the collector's offices makes it appear imperative that the present number of collection districts be increased.

In regard to the cost of additional districts the Secretary

The establishment of 10 new collection districts would involve an additional annual expenditure of not to exceed $500,000.

It is manifest that Secretary Mellon did not make his usual critical examination of the two columns embodied in his letter under the years 1911 and 1921. The loose construction and the violent assumption embodied in this letter prove that Secretary Mellon did not write it. No man who has accumulated a fortune equal to his would ever be guilty of the gross oversight in this document. The letter surely originated in the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and in all probability was submitted to him on carbon copy for signature and transmission to the committee

At first sight we would assume that even Commissioner Blair would not make such a glaring mistake as this letter contains. Other communications from him, however, received over his signature in connection with controverted questions, make it possible to believe that he may have written it. The probabilities are that some clerk who wants to see 10 additional districts, drafted the letter and submitted it to the commis-

A careful reading of the letter shows that the year 1911 is compared with 1921 on the assumption that there was no increase of clerical force in the Bureau of Internal Revenue within those years. What are the material facts in this case?

The situation in 1911 was substantially the same as it was in 1913, and stood as follows: Number of employees in the Washington bureau on July 1, 1913, was 277, and on July 1, 1921, totaled 7,096. In the field service on July 1, 1913, the number of employees was 3,723, and on July 1, 1921, was 12,541, making a total of 4,000 in 1913 and of 19,637 in 1921. To this must be added 800 additional auditors since July 1, 1921, mak-

The letter assumes that the clerical force of 4,000 for 1911 was performing all the service in 1921, while the facts show that the clerical force had been increased to 20,437. The Washington bureau on July 1, 1913, was carried at an expense of $357,231, but had increased in expenditure by July of 1921 to $11,582,550. The field service on July 1, 1913, was carried at an expense of $4,839,093, but in 1921 had increased to $22,048,331. The cost of the entire service in 1913 was $5,296,332, and in 1921 it was $33,630,881, with an additional appropriation for 800 additional employees made subsequent to 1921.

With such glaring errors as these, how can any reliance be placed upon the Secretary's report which, of course, originated with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue? Unless the commissioner should ultimately develop the ability to make better deductions than these, how can he be relied upon to conduct the internal-revenue business of the United States of America? Why did not the commissioner give the committee and the House these facts? Did he assume that they would pass unnoticed?

With an increase of clerical force of 16,437 for 1923 over with an increase of cierical force of 10,437 for 1923 over 1911, and with an increase in expenditures of $30,000,000 for 1923 over 1911, why should Commissioner Blair find it difficult to bring all branches of the internal-revenue business up to date and keep it there, especially in view of the fact that the total volume of business for 1923 will be reduced nearly one-half from the volume of business transacted in 1920? How can we refrain from thinking and saying that the demand for 10 additional districts at an annual expense of $500,000 is proof positive of maladministration and gross inefficiency?

This kind of a bill should be buried so deeply that it will never see daylight again. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nebraska has expired.

Respect for the Constitution-The Eighteenth Amendment.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. WILLIAM N. VAILE,

OF COLORADO. IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Monday, April 24, 1922.

Mr. VAILE. Mr. Speaker, "What's the Constitution between friends?" was the famous inquiry of a former well-known political boss, the owner of several powerful newspapers.

The intolerance of constitutional restraints is as old as the Constitution itself. Its manifestations have ranged from mere unwillingness to cooperate with the Government to actual vio-lence, crime, sedition, and anarchy. The same spirit has over-thrown many other Governments and accomplished the ruin of many peoples. It may conceivably overthrow our Government and ruin the American people, and the reason it has not yet done so is because all of our great national leaders from Washington to Harding have thought and have taught and the great majority of the American people still believe that respect for our own fundamental law is only the necessary self-respect without which the Nation can not possibly endure. If we should ever come to regard the Constitution of the United States as "a scrap of paper," the American Nation would be past saving, because it would not be worth saving.

Nevertheless it is still assumed by some people, who as good Americans ought to know better, that the Constitution may be disregarded-at least, "between friends"-and these people, disregarded—at least, "between friends"—and these people, when their own pleasures or desires are interfered with, actually feel very much aggrieved at the insistence that the Constitution is the most sacred human institution which we have. And, naturally enough, the question, "What is the Constitution between friends?" is often propounded to candidates for office.

It was propounded to me recently by Mr. C. J. Hyland, the editor of a Denver paper, the Liberty Press, as follows:

AN OPEN LETTER TO CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM & VAILE.

It is generally understood that you are to be a candidate for renomination and reelection this year.

The Liberty Press has supported you in the past and is inclined, from motives of personal friendship and esteem, to support you again, but for your apparent tendency to disregard the wishes of your constituency by voting with the Prohibitionists against modification of the Voistead law, as was evidenced when the question of the use of beer for medicinal nurposes was before Congress a few months ago.

You are probably aware that a large majority of the people of Denver favor the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, and the Liberty Press refects that sentiment as every honest newspaper should reflect the sentiment of its readers.

You, as a student of economics, must realize that the Voistead law, in its present form, has made and is continuing to make inwbreakers and criminals out of millions of otherwise law-abiding citizens, creating a wholesale disrespect for all law and developing in our people an appetite for strong spirituous liquors.

The people of Denver believe, and we believe, that this deplorable condition can be materially relieved by legalising the use of light wind and been with the paper stands first for the amendment of the Voistead law.

It you can and will support this policy in your future congressional law.

If you can and will support this policy in your future congressional work, Congressman Valle, we are for you.

A lot of people who are otherwise law-abiding seem to think that the eighteenth amendment was not really meant to be observed. And some people who believe in prohibition believe in it with mental reservations. "It's a fine thing for Smith; in it with mental reservations. "It's a fine thing for Smith; it'll do him a lot of good; but it isn't really necessary to apply it to me." This is human nature, and, in fairness, this point of view was perhaps to be expected immediately following such a radical change to an entirely new system.

The hurt comes when we find that the law is being enforced, that its violation brings liability to punishment just the same as violation of other laws, and that it applies to ourselves as well as to the other fellow.

But the vitally important thing is that, as a part of our organic law, the eighteenth amendment is really the acid test of our ability to govern ourselves; that is to say, of our ability to abide by our own rules.

As soon as the foregoing publication was brought to my attention. I answered it as follows:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 18, 1922.

Mr. C. J. HYLAND, Editor the Liberty Press, Denver, Colo.

Editor the Liberty Press, Denver, Colo.

My Dear Hyland: I greatly appreciate the friendship displayed in your open letter to me in the Liberty Press under date of March 11. You offer me, in the coming election, a continuation of your generous support, which I have always valued very highly, if I will return an affirmative answer to your question whether I will support an amendment to the Voistead Act legalizing light wines and beer. Your question is entitled to a candid and categorical answer, and while I regret that the answer will deprive me of your support, I hope and believe that it will not deprive me of your friendship, a most pleasant one of many years' standing.

My answer is, No.

Friend Hyland, I have never pretended to be much of a saint, but I pressant one or many years standing.

My answer is, No.

Friend Hyland, I have never pretended to be much of a saint, but I do have a very definite idea of the meaning of the obligation which I assumed when I took my oath of office. That oath was to support the Constitution of the United States. The Constitution of the United States.

assumed when I took my oath of office. That oath was to support the Constitution of the United States. The Constitution of the United States says:

"The manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, for beverage purposes, is hereby prohibited."

To amend the Volstead Act so as to declare that light wines and beer are not intoxicating would be an attempt—in my opinion, an unsuccessful attempt—at legislative camouflage which would deceive nobody. The very reason why light wines and beer are desired is because they are intoxicating. Of course, it will be immediately urged that they are only mildly intoxicating. It seems to me that it is useless to argue that point. Our Constitution makes no distinction between mildly intoxicating, somewhat intoxicating, and very intoxicating. The word used is "intoxicating," without any qualification whatever. Consequently I do not see how I could vote for something that is even "mildly intoxicating," without vloiating my oath of office.

You say that a large majority of the people of Denver favor the nanufacture and sale of light wines and beer. Possibly so. You are on the ground, and better able to read their sentiment than I am, but they will simply have to elect a different Congressman if a vote it z such an amendment to the Volstead law is to be cast from the first district of Colorado.

With warmest personal regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

William N. Valle.

The foregoing letter I sent by the same mail to the Liberty Press and to other Denver papers, with the result that it was published in another paper before Mr. Hyland's paper went to press. I regret the seeming discourtesy which arises out of this circumstance, though I do not believe Mr. Hyland is disposed to complain. He was starting on a campaign of publicity against a Congressman who opposes the weakening of the Volstead law, and of course as an experienced newspaper man he would hardly protest if the object of his criticism welcomes and assists in the full and complete airing of the issue.

Immediately after the publication of my reply the Liberty Press published an editorial indorsing another man as a candidate, saying:

We need a man of Mr. —'s caliber to represent us in Congress, a man who has the spine, and who is not afraid to express his convictions. Now is the time for the people at large to demand their choice. Don't let the foxy politician put it over.

I presume the gentleman referred to has expressed his conviction in favor of amending the Volstead law to permit light wines and beer. I presume I am inferentially referred to as a "foxy politician," though the language is general. I ought to say here that Mr. Hyland has always treated me personally with the utmost courtesy. Indeed, even after the publications of the same property of the same proper tions referred to, he complimented me with a very generous editorial reference in connection with a report—entirely un-founded—that I was to be appointed to fill a vacancy on the Federal bench.

Well, if compliance with the plain mandate of the Constitution makes a man a "foxy politician," then I have earned the

The publication of Mr. Hyland's article, and of my reply, has resulted in a great deal of correspondence, some unfavorable, but mostly favorable, to my position in the matter. So far as I can tell from the tone of these letters and from some newspaper comment-which has been extremely generous to methe great majority of the people of Denver and of Colorado as a whole most emphatically do not "favor the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer." If I am right in this estimate of the sentiment in my own community, the fact is of itself a remarkable testimonial to the substantial success of enforced prohibition, notwithstanding the too frequent viola-tions of the law, because the city of Denver voted wet by a majority of 8,500 when state-wide prohibition was adopted in 1914-to be effective January 1, 1916-and had previously voted wet when the question was an issue. Subsequently, however, the city as well as the State voted against a change in the State law which would have legalized wine and beer, and if, as my correspondence would seem to indicate, the prevailing sentiment is now "dry," this means that it has become so, and has stayed so, during the actual operation of two years of State prohibition and three years of national prohibition.

Another Denver paper, the Leader, published by two stalwart American citizens of Italian extraction. Messrs. George and Fred Mangini, and with a clientele largely of Italian origin, said editorially:

The citizens of Colorado have made our State the boniest dry State in the country, and it would be unfair and un-American for anyone to expect Congressman Valle to take any other stand. The Denver Leader will support Mr. Valle in the coming election.

Inasmuch as the Italian people, a temperate nation, have long been accustomed to their light wines, this evidence of willing cooperation with our laws on the part of Italian-born citizens who must feel considerable inconvenience on account of the radical change in our laws, strikes me as a splendid example of patriotism which might well be emulated by some American-born citizens.

Among the hundreds of letters indorsing my postion some come from outside my own State. A nice little old lady way up in the Catskills, 2.000 miles from my home town, sends me warm words of congratulation and encouragement.

Of course many of my letters come from church and tem-perance organizations, which, it may be said, would naturally be expected to approve the views which I have expressed. Let me respond that at least they are not actuated by any selfish motive, either of self-indulgence or of financial gain. Whether you agree with these folks or not. Mr. Anti-Eighteenth Amendment, you will have to absolve them from any but altruistic motives. They worked for prohibition and are now working to maintain it and make it effective, because they believe it is right and beneficial. Their interest is merely the interest of good citizens in the welfare of their country and their community. Does anyone doubt that the faithful women of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, who fought so many years for the defeat of alcohol, were actuated solely by a desire for the public good? I remember once seeing a parade of school children marching under a banner, "Tremble, King Alcohol, we shall grow up!" Those children were mostly grown up by the time that prohibition became a constitutional reality. Now, do you think they were actuated by the hope of financial gain? On the other hand, what was the principal motive of those who fought so hard to prevent prohibition? If you take more than one guess you are not honest with yourself.

But my letters of indorsement are not all by any means from such organizations or their members. I have a splendid one from a veteran police sergeant who has seen the city from its toughest days to the present time, a typical "hard-boiled," straightforward, hard-fisted guardian of the peace, familiar, through years of professional contact, with all forms of misfortune, vice, and crime, a man who has long since learned to view mankind not perhaps without sentiment but at least without sentimentality. His letter is the strongest kind of an indorsement of prohibition, notwithstanding its incomplete enforcement, ment of prohibition, notwithstauding its incompact and is based upon his own concrete observation of its effects, and is based upon his own concrete observation of its effects.

We wish to thank you for the manly and patriotic stand you took in the matter of that pernicious amendment permitting the use of "light with the light with the pernicious amendment permitting the use of "light and in the United States, and any amendment that would weaken it would be an attack on the Federal Constitution. Please accept our admiration for your loyalty to the best institutions of our Government and for your reverence for "God and home and native land."

It seems to me that the country is still sound at its core when a post of Civil War veterans comes out like that in behalf of its country's laws-but, after all, that is only what you would expect of men who fought for their country.

Incidentally, did you ever hear of a post of the American Legion or the Veterans of Foreign Wars indorsing "light wines and beer" or any other evasion of the eighteenth amendment? Think over that question a little bit, if you are laboring under any delusion that prohibition was "slipped over" on the soldier boys while they were away. If these magnificent organizations of young veterans were really smarting under an outrageous fraud perpetrated upon them in their absence by their countrymen whom they were at that moment defending on the battle fields of Europe, do you suppose they would stand it without protest? It is not the nature of the American soldier to so placidly endure the infliction of a great wrong.

Of course, the plain and simple fact is that the Legion boys as a body do not feel that they were wronged in the least by the passage of the eighteenth amendment or the law for its enforcement. Incidentally, the Congress which voted to submit the amendment to the States was elected in the fall of 1916, before the United States had entered the war and before a single soldier was drafted. It certainly was an issue which was thoroughly discussed in that campaign. I ought to know. I-was a candidate for Congress in that year.

The American soldiers in the World War were a horizontal cross-section of the American people. It is a fairly safe con-clusion that they were not very far different in their views from the folks at home. The charge that prohibition was "slipped upon the soldiers is as pure bunkum as is the charge that it was the act of a minority of the people at home. That charge is so absurd that it would seem that it must be dismissed upon the very slightest reflection.

Consider the facts shown by the record. All that the "wets" had to do to prevent prohibition was, in the first place, to secure the votes of one-third of either House of Congress. They could not do that, and consequently the amendment was submitted by the votes of more than two-thirds of both the House and the Senate. When it came to the State ratifications all that wets" had to do was to obtain a bare majority in either branch of only 13 State legislatures. Advocates of the amendment had to obtain both houses, 72 in all, in 36 States. How sadly the opponents of prohibition fell down is shown by the fact that in less than a year and a half the amendment was favorably voted on by 92 out of the 96 houses of the 48 legislatures of the country, and only 4 houses out of the entire 96 voted against it. voted against it.

No political party in the history of the country ever polled such a tremendous majority on any issue. Of course, it may be assumed that the great majority of people who voted for legislative candidates favorable to prohibition were not them-selves total abstainers. They voted for prohibition, neverthe-less, in the conviction that the country would be better off without liquor.

In view of the overwhelming figures, the man who asserts that prohibition was "put over" by a minority has a brain that is either dead or sound asleep.

Such, with all due respect to its owner, and in the sincere hope that it may yet be revived, is the brain of one of my constituents who most emphatically does not favor me or my views. The gentleman courts publicity, and, in fact, I promised him publicity, but I have concluded to at least postpone complete performance of my promise by withholding his name. Possibly he may decide to be a candidate for office after he has seen the light, and I do not wish to embarrass him in the future.

I may perhaps be allowed to determine the degree of publicity, since I am paying for it myself. Contrary to the general impression, reprints from the Congressional Record are not paid for by Uncle Sam, They are charged, at about the ordinary commercial rate, to the Congressman who orders them, and this one is therefore paid for by me out of my salary.

DENVER, Colo., April 5, 1922.

Hon. William N. Valle,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Hon. William N. Valle.

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Burn Mr. Valle. Your most recent public statement in Denver papers opposing the repeal or medification of the Voistead Act to permit the sale of light wines and beers under Government supervision is receiving considerable comment throughout Colorado. You say you would violate your oath of office. There could be no greater violation of the office than to ignore the wishes of the majority to repeal any law or any part of our Constitution that is detrimental to the life, weifare, and happiness of the people, and this is the existing condition resulting from the eighteenth amendment and the Voistead Act.

The enforcement agents in Denver most recently caught 48 violators selling vile, homemade moonehine in one day, and almost every day from one to a dozen violators of the probibition law are fined in the fair city which you represent. This is more than tenfold the amount of drankard violators than when the city was wet and had open saloons, which are undesirable and should be eliminated.

Do you think if we had pure wines and beers under Government supervision the people would buy this vile moonshine and homemade conocctions that have destroyed more lives than were lost by American armies during the Great World War? And this destruction is the result of two years of national prolibition and six years of dry laws in Colorado. Since the bone-dry law invoked by the Colorado State Leginature you have more inmates in the city jail in Denver and the penifentlary at Cauon City and more than 12 per cent increase in two years in the insane asylums, which is the greatest ever known in the history of the Commonwealth of Colorado when it was wet from every corner to the center. Taxes have increased over 250 per cent in the last six years, and we have increased the police force of Denver after six years of the Commonwealth of Colorado when it was wet from every corner to the center. Taxes have increased over 250 per cent in the last six years, and we have incr

The gentleman has indeed a poor opinion of his fellow countrymen if he really thinks that 10 per cent of the population of America secured the votes of two-thirds of the Members of each House of Congress and 95 per cent of the houses of the State legislatures. He shows a lack of appreciation of the greatest economic disaster in history when he expresses surprise that we have had a great increase of taxation in the last six years. The fact that we have been through a war which added a little trifle of twenty-five billions to our national debt evidently spells nothing to him. He is, of course, correct when he refers to the sale of much vile moonshine liquor, but he is also correct when he calls attention to the fact that its makers and sellers are being arrested and convicted by the diligent and patriotic law-enforcement officers, State and Federal, who operate in Colorado.

On his statement that there is an increase in crime he is just about as correct as when he says that the amendment was "put over" by a 10 per cent minority. The year 1914 had 28 deaths from alcoholism reported by the Denver city physician; 1915 was nearly the same, the number being 25. In 1916, the first year of State prohibition, the number sank to 11, or less than half. In 1917 it was 8; in 1918, 6; and in 1919, only 1. Notwithstanding the wood-alcohol concoctions, which no doubt are still occasionally sold to the people who are foolish enough to buy them, deaths from alcoholism are now rare indeed in

Crime of all sorts diminished in volume throughout the State, from 13,769 in 1915, to 10,045 in 1916; 9,643 in 1919; and less than 9,000 in 1921, notwithstanding an increase in population, and crime in Colorado is still on the decrease.

The Denver City Bureau of Charities and Corrections reports that in the year following the adoption of State-wide prohibition the number of families asking relief from the city office was about a hundred a month less than for the corresponding months in 1915. Even during the unemployment stress of last year the number of applicants for city charity was less than prior to the advent of prohibition.

My friend should have consulted available sources of information before making such wild statements as he sets up in his letter.

Since the foregoing correspondence was written a tragic event has taken place in the newspaper world in Colorado.

The Durango Democrat was one of the few papers in the State which was continuing the fight against the dry law. Of course, the circumstance that it was a Democratic paper is merely fortuitous. Prohibition in Colorado has not been a A bitter controversy arose between Rod S. Day, the proprietor of the Democrat, and William L. Wood, city editor of the Durango Herald, who strongly supported the eighteenth amendment. The two men met on the street, Wood, according to newspaper reports, being unarmed. Day, it is alleged, struck Wood with a carpenter's rule and then leveled a poisted at thim. Wood, according to an every trace of the work of the struck wood with a carpenter's rule and then leveled a pistol at him. Wood, according to an eye-witness, threw his arms over his face and turned his back. Day pulling the trigger while his victim was shrinking from the expected shot. brilliant young life was snuffed out. He was only 35 years old. His girl wife is now a widow and his child will be an orphan without ever having seen its father. Day, one of the most popular and picturesque newspaper characters in the is branded with the mark of Cain, and will probably spend the rest of his life behind prison bars.

Was the fight for liquor worth this to Rod S. Day? Was it worth it to the town of Durango? Perhaps my correspondent last quoted would claim that this crime was due to the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law. In a sense it was,

but was the law to blame?

Let's all quit blaming the law and put the blame where it belongs, on the people who violate it and the people who fight

-on ourselves, if the blame fits us.

What we need is not a new law but a new backbone, a little bit of old-fashioned conscience, and an American sense of obligation to the laws which we ourselves have made.

SPEECH

HON. THOMAS U. SISSON, OF MISSISSIPPI,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Friday, May 12, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 10972) to readjust the pay and allowances of the commissioned and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Public Health Service.

Mr. SISSON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word in order to ask the chairman of the committee a question. Take section 3, in reference to the National Guard. What is the estimated cost of the increased pay given to the National Guard officers in section 3?

Mr. McKENZIE. I do not know that we have any estimate.

It is very difficult to make an estimate.

Mr. SISSON. I understand that to be true, but I thought, perhaps, the gentleman had had some figures made for him on the subject.

Mr. McKENZIE. No.

Mr. SISSON. Because, dealing, as he does here, solely with grades, of course you would have to know the number in each grade and the number in the National Guard and the number falling in a particular class.

Mr. McKENZIE. The gentleman from Mississippi under-stands that now, under the law, there are a few National Guard officers who may be called into the Militia Bureau and the General Staff.

Mr. SISSON. I understand that. Mr. McKENZIE. And they would Mr. McKENZIE. And they would be entitled to count what-ever little service they may have had for longevity pay on that; but the purpose of this is to have it written into the law so that in case of war and the National Guard is called in, they will draw the pay they drew in the last war without any legislation.

Mr. SISSON. I understand that from the section also, and am anxious to know how it affects the peace status of the whole National Guard.

Mr. McKENZIE. From a financial standpoint?

Mr. GRIFFIN, Yes.

Mr. McKENZIE, I doubt if it will make any particular change—very little,

Mr. SISSON. Mr. Chairman, if I may discuss generally for a moment the bill, it is all so much like section 3 that even the Army officers themselves can not tell you what this bill is going to cost. I did not give the bill any study until yester-I have talked to some of the officers, and the very complication of this bill is such that I doubt whether there is a man in the House who can figure out what an officer's pay will The trouble with the bill, so far as it appeals to my mind is concerned, is that to vote for it is very much like voting for a pig in a sack. You do not know where you are going to come out, and you do not know what is in the sack.

Now, let me illustrate. I got the assistance of an officer, whose name I shall not mention, and when I asked him about the comparison between this bill and its effect upon the Treasury and the bill of 1908, he said that there was no basis of comparison. I talked with the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. OLIVER] this morning, and he corroborates the officer's statement that this morning, and he corroborates the omcer's statement that the whole system is changed, so that you can not get a basis of comparison. I said to the officer, "Let me suggest this to you: Suppose we take a major. Can not you tell me what a major's maximum pay is under this bill, and what a major's maximum pay would be under the bill of 1908, which was in force up to the breaking out of the war?" "Well," he said, "yes; I can the that" and he made the former for me. Now according to do that," and he made the figures for me. Now, according to his figures, the maximum pay, under the 1908 law, of a major, including longevity pay, commutation of quarters, heat, and light, was four thousand seven hundred and some odd dollars, not quite $5,000. Under this bill, in American service, not foreign service, the limit is $7,200. Now, if that is true and that rule applies to all the officers in the bill, and this bill increases the pay which was prevalent up until 1920-that is, the old 1908 law—then every officer in the major class would finally reach a maximum pay of four thousand nine hundred and odd—

Mr. GREENE of Vermont. Will the gentleman yield for a suggestion? I think that is only a bare possibility under this suggestion? I think that is only a bare possibility under this bill, and for this reason—that while the man is waiting for promotion before he gets in the higher grade we provide he shall get longevity pay, and in any number of years he might possibly go up to that. But that is theoretical, purely.

Mr. SISSON. I am trying, if possible, to strip the question of all "ifs" and "ands" and "conditions," so as to tell what it will cost the taxpayer as compared with the law of 1908.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. SISSON. I ask that I may have fix a minutes additional

Mr. SISSON. I ask that I may have five minutes additional, The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes. Is there ob-

[After a pause.] The Chair hears none. fection?

Mr. SISSON. But to take a concrete illustration: The maximum pay that a major would get under the old law was four thousand nine hundred and odd dollars. The maximum pay under this bill of the same officer staying in this country is $7,200. I asked if we take all of these men and run them down would that ratio be preserved. He said, "I think so." Now, this very anomalous thing appears in this bill. It is made up of longevities to such an extent that a captain with about 20 years' service will get more pay than a major with 10 years' There is not one of you gentlemen here, I do not service. believe there is a single member of this committee who can tell you what an officer's salary will be. Take the majors. How much are you going to appropriate for majors? You have to take the matter out and figure it out, and the difficulty is you can not tell how many you are going to

Mr. GREENE of Vermont. If the gentleman will permit,

Mr. SISSON. I have not much time.

Mr. GREENE of Vermont. I do not desire to trespass upon the gentleman's time, but the gentleman is talking about a captain of 20 years getting more money than a major of 10 years' service. That can only apply to one class of captains, who perhaps ought not to be in there at all, and that is the Medical Department Corps, where there is no grade above captain and where men may stay for 25 or 40 years in the grade

Mr. SISSON. I have not had time to take and study this, but I am calling attention to these things that appear to me, and in so far as my investigation goes if you trace it down we are getting into a very bad box here. A MEMBER. What are you going to do about it?

Mr. SISSON. Vote this bill down. That is the way to do it. I have talked to Members of Congress about it, and I find that Members of Congress do not know what they are doing, and I am glad to have backing like my good friend over here, because he is a legislator. I know it because I have served on committees with him. I am glad to have company like that. I am going to ask permission here to put in the RECORD a table show-ing the entrance pay of the various officers and their grades under the 1908 law and their maximum pay, and insert in the RECORD a comparative statement showing the base pay of each entrance grade in this bill and the maximum pay under this

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent to insert in the RECORD the material indicated. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears

The matter referred to is as follows:

The maximum pay of a second lieutenant under the act of May 11, 1908, was $3,079.90. The maximum pay of a second lieutenant under the proposed bill is $4,258.

The maximum pay of a first lieutenant under the act of May 11, 1908, was $3,739.85. The maximum pay of a first lieutenant under the proposed bill is $5,118.

The maximum pay of a captain under the act of May 11, 1908 was $4,547.50. The maximum pay of a captain under the proposed bill is $6,507.

The maximum pay of a major under the act of May 11, 1908. The maximum pay of a major under the prowas $5,439.65, posed bill is $7,200.

The maximum pay of a lieutenant colonel under the act of May 11, 1908, was $6,174.30. The maximum pay under the proposed bill is $7,200.

The maximum pay of a colonel under the act of May 11, 1908, was $6,907.60. The posed bill is $7,200. The maximum pay of a colonel under the pro-

Mr. SISSON. Now, Mr. Chairman, the members of the committee will at once see that with several thousand officers of the grades just mentioned, this bill, if passed, will cost the Government several million dollars more for the same number of officers than did the law of 1908. But this is not the whole story. Promotions made during the war were very rapid, and this bill crystallizes these promotions, which ought to be temporary, into permanent promotions, and that costs the taxpayer many millions more than it should. In addition to that there are many officers who were taken into the Army from private life who were rapidly promoted to the high grades, and they are also cared for and made permanent at the high salaries under this proposed legislation.

Now, gentlemen of the committee, for the reasons I have stated, and many more, I would have to know a great deal more about this bill than I know now to vote for it, and if my investigation in the future shows those things as objectionable as I have found from my investigation since I have had the time to go into the bill, my objection will continue to grow against this bill.

Now, gentlemen of the committee, why is it that not one word has been said, so far as I have heard, in this debate comparing the pay in this bill with the 1908 law? All of the comparison has been made with the 1920 law, and the 1920 law s so bad that even the Army officers themselves know that Congress would not stand by the provisions of that law. But the principal objection to this bill is this, that all of these rapid promotions that the officer got during the war are pre-served and crystallized in this bill. Where a young man had served 20 or 30 years, as the case may be, to reach a certain grade, these men have reached it within a very few years. They are now getting the pay under the present law—and that is the objection-of the man who served 20 or 30 years in the service. Now they are endeavoring to hold on to these war salaries and make them a permanent burden upon the back of the taxpayer.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired. Mr. SISSON. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for wo minutes more

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Mississippi asks unanimous consent for two minutes more. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. SISSON. They have put the brakes on him now, and hold him at his present pay in the advance grade until he has served as long as the fellow who gets the increased pay under the terms of this bill. Now, there is some fairness in that if you accept the principle of longevity. I am not going to discuss that, because it involves too many questions. feature of the bill I do not like, that instead of permitting these officers to go back to the grade they would have had prior to the war, plus whatever natural promotion they would have had under the law for the additional number of years' service, it lets them go back, unless by act of Congress they have been promoted to certain grades by virtue of most meritorious conduct. I am unwilling to say that I will promote every man to a higher grade as an officer solely because he serves well as an Army officer. I would be just as sure to give the advancement to the private who did his duty as to the Army officer who did his duty, and since you can not help the private I am willing to say to the officer that we are going to give him a promotion that was necessary under war conditions because of the rapid growth, and say that a second lieutenant would be a colonel or a colonel would be a captain. When the war was over, instead of permitting these men to go back to the original status where they belong, you have crystallized them here, not under their old salaries that they would have had under their old grade, but you have added something like 20 per cent more than that if the rule prevails that prevails with a major, which has been the one officer that I have been able to trace from the beginning until he goes out. So I am utterly unwilling to support the bill as it is at present.

Good Roads.

SPEECH

HON. EDWARD B. ALMON,

OF ALABAMA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Monday, May 1, 1922.

The House had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11131) to authorize the appropriation of additional sums for Federal aid in the construction of rural post roads, and for other purposes.

Mr. ALMON. Mr. Speaker, no nation can be really great and prosperous without three successful means of transportationby rail, by water, and by highway. [Applause.] Now above ny rani, by water, and by highway. [Applause,] Now above all times in the history of our Nation it is important that we have an improved highway system. The railroads have not been able to handle the business of the country. They need the cooperation and assistance of the waterways and the high-I have always been in favor of national aid to roads, and if I represented a city district I should favor national aid to roads, because anything that improves country conditions and makes the farmers more prosperous is in the interest of the cities. If it was not for the farm the grass would grow up in the streets of the cities. If it had not been for farms of the West we would not have had a Kansas City, a Chicago, or a St. Louis. Every man who is in favor of national ald for roads ought to vote for this bill. [Applause.]

The first Federal appropriation for roads was made by Con-The first Federal appropriation for roads was made by Congress in 1916. The appropriations up to this time, not including the amount authorized in this bill, amount to about $340,000,000. Of this amount about $7,500,000 has heretofore been allotted to the State of Alabama. Alabama's part of the amount authorized in this bill amounts to $2,896,715. This will make available for road construction in Alabama $6,873,387 Federal funds between now and July 1, 1924, which does not include the amounts now under contract. When this amount is matched by the State, it will amount to $13,746,774.

So we are justified in the hope that from now on there will be great progress made in road construction with Federal aid as an adopted policy of our Government.

It has been thoroughly demonstrated by history that no country has made any great progress in road construction except where the Government has aided their construction and maintenance.

There has been for many years a tendency on the part of the people to leave the farms and go to the towns and cities. Much of this was due to bad roads. With good roads, rural mail delivery, telephones, good schoolhouses, and churches would make country life more desirable and attractive and will have a tendency to stop this movement from the country to the towns and cities.

It is useless for me to make reference at this time to the many, many advantages of good roads. This is well known to everyone. I have been a member of the Committee on Roads since 1915 and have taken a special interest in helping to prepare road legislation and secure liberal appropriations by Congress, realizing its great importance to all the people in the States. Federal aid for roads encourages the States and localities in raising road funds and cooperating with the Federal Government in the construction of the public roads. I shall continue my efforts as long as I am a Member of the House in securing the very largest possible appropriations for road construction and do all that I can to hasten the completion of all our roads. Then the people in all parts of every county in the United States will be given the advantage of good roads over which to travel. [Applause.]

Program for Constructive Immigration Legislation.

HON. ALBERT JOHNSON,

OF WASHINGTON,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Friday, May 5, 1922.

The House, as in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, had under consideration the bill (H. R. 10442) to amend an act entitled "An act to declare the purpose of the people of the United States as to the future political status of the people of the Philippine Islands, and to provide a more autonomous government for these islands," approved August 29, 1916, as amended by an act to amend said act approved July 21, 1921.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I am glad the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. Box] has undertaken to present to this House some of the difficulties which lie in the way of permanent immigration legislation. He deserves thanks for the work that he has done in looking up treaty relations and in showing that simply because there is a cry for the complete suspension of immigration, or a cry for selection of immigrants and distribution in this country, that these things can not quite be done by law in the short and quick method that some people think.

The question has been frequently asked on this floor during the last few months, each time we have brought in some immigration measure on an amendment, as to when we might expect permanent immigration legislation.

Many persons wonder why the percentage restriction law has not been tightened up and made more binding. Some ask why Cengress has not enacted a law completely suspending immigration for a period of years. Let me remind all of these questioners that it took more than 25 years of continuous effort to get a law even as restrictive as the 3 per cent act.

Each and every bill designed really to restrict immigration passed by Senate and House from the first days of the administration of Grover Cleveland to the last days of the administration of Woodrow Wilson was vetoed for some reason or other, usually because the proposed law interfered with that non-sensical notion that the United States was always to be the asylum for the oppressed of the world

The right to ask these questions is unquestioned. But let me in return ask the Members a question or two.

What plan of permanent immigration legislation do you prefer?

Will you have a suspension of all immigration, or will you have a permanent immigration act which is highly restrictive? Probably that is what the great majority of the people want. If so, then what degree of restriction and what method?

I think we all who have given any extensive consideration to the subject in recent years will decide that for the purpose of restriction nothing can be better than a percentage plan somewhat similar to the one we have experimented with now for nearly one year, and which we have just extended for two years more.

In my opinion the act limiting immigration to 355,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30 came in the nick of time. It has saved the United States in that year from an influx of fully 1,500,000 immigrants at a time when we could neither assimilate nor employ them. When the year is up we will find that less than 250,000 immigrants have been admitted, including 2,800 or 2,300 who have been admitted temporarily for reasons of humanity and because of difficulties in getting the new law into operation. A total of 1,446 have been turned back because of exhausted quotas. Debarred for all causes in about 10 months were 11,066, which, I believe, is the record, and is still not enough. Too many demented, decrepit, and defective are being admitted.

The 3 per cent act ended the asylum idea just in time to prevent the United States from becoming the almshouse of the world—many of the alien inmates would like to run the asylum—and I desire to give full credit to the members of the House Immigration Committee, of which I have the honor to be chairman, for sticking firmly to the idea of restriction, and for forcing forward a bill which, although pronounced dead, refused to die until it was superseded by the Dillingham act, which both Houses passed and which President Harding promptly signed.

We now have the 3 per cent act extended for two years from July 1. For one year it has worked well in enforcing restriction, in spite of needed perfecting amendments. Therefore, I am of the opinion that permanent restrictive immigration legislation should be based on the percentage-restriction plan, with the efforts of the committee devoted to perfecting the plan. I believe Congress would be justified in amending the law so as to give all countries a base quota of about 600, and in addition thereto not to exceed 2 per cent of the number of aliens in the United States as shown by the census of 1910, That would lessen the difficulties arising from small quotas now given to certain countries, and would decrease the large quotas awarded to other countries.

I believe that all quotas should consist only of persons eligible to citizenship under our present naturalization laws, An amendment to that effect would end the difficulties which arise from our "gentleman's agreement" with Japan. There is no reason why we should admit to become residents of the United States persons who never can become citizens of the United States.

Legislative difficulties which stood in the way this summer are clearing up, and if it is the view of the members of the committee, as it is of mine, that the percentage plan is the true plan, it will be easy, in my opinion, to make these perfecting amendments, and certain others, so that we may give to the country at the beginning of the winter session of this Congress a permanent immigration act.

Mr. BOX. I would like to ask the gentleman how he would regard any legislation, administrative or otherwise, that would tend to take the dealing with this problem from the hands of Congress acting through its legislative committee, the House Committee on Immigration?

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. I will answer the gentleman by saying I am in full accord with the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Lodel], who stated over and over again at the recent Limitation of Arms Conference that the regulation of immigration is a matter of our own concern, regardless of treatles; that it is our matter. We have no desire to build a wall around the United States and say that no new person whatever shall come, whether relative, visitor, or otherwise, but we must, as we consider or discuss the whole question, make sure of the future of our own country, and be certain of the rights of our children and grandchildren. Otherwise posterity may have cause to bring a very serious charge against us.

Mr. MOORE of Virginia. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. I am glad to yield.
Mr. MOORE of Virginia. That is, whether the committee is giving consideration to the much-talked-of matter of registration of immigrants after they have reached this side?

giving consideration to the much-taked of matter of registration of immigrants after they have reached this side? Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Yes. I want to discuss the difficulties that arise from the fact that proposed transportation, legislation, and all treaties run to and involve immigration. The gentleman asked awhile ago why we did not make speed. That is one of the reasons.

Now, as to registration, I am firmly of the opinion the aliens who come to the United States hereafter should arrive with a certificate showing thereon complete information concerning that alien. As to those aliens now in the country and not even in the first process of naturalization. I think we would do well to change the plan of naturalization. My mind is open concerning the plan of registration. I am in doubt as to whether a law for compulsory registration can be enforced or not. It certainly should not be enforced as a process leading on to enforced citizenship. That being the case, I can hardly see why we should proceed with the making of a law that would enforce registration on the person who is not likely or might not desire to come into citizenship. Further, enforced registration for a fee, without a sufficient penalty, would be meaningless and with a sufficient penalty we will all be better off.

would lead to the trouble of collection and enforcement, with great danger of failure. So that is a question which is still

I think, however, that a great majority of the alien population now in the United States are willing to accept the voluntary registration system. I think they misunderstand the proposal, and that they are being misinformed by the foreignlanguage press. I think they are reading the bill as if it were designed to force them to do this, or to do that, willy-nilly-to go to night school and learn to read English. Not so; they may remain untutored until doomsday if they choose. They may remain untutored until doomsday if they choose. may continue to speak Hottentot and not know a word of Eng lish. But we can and should and must provide in our naturalization laws that those persons whom we are willing to make actual citizens of the United States shall, when they become citizens, know enough English to be able to read the election ticket that has your name or mine on it. [Applause.] That is the point. As we progress with the restriction of immigrants, and when we shall require them not to start from the old country without a proper certificate, the undesirable kind will not get a chance to make the start for the United States, and

I hold the firm belief that the United States will never go back to any scheme that will welcome the uncounted millions of the four corners of the world to our young new country, which in less than 140 years has raced through billions of acres, which has handled its resources as if they were inex-haustible, so that now fathers and mothers are lying awake nights wondering what is to become of their children.

Armenia During and Since the War.

SPEECH

HON. EDWARD C. LITTLE, OF KANSAS,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, December 17, 1921.

Mr. LITTLE. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, the soldiers and statesmen of our country in the past have found ample authority in the Constitution for doing good, the same as we are doing to-day. I commend to you their reasons and their statements and their opinions. Perhaps it is an appeal to Seward's Higher Law on which they based such aid as we vote to the dying millions of Russia by this bill. I have known instances where relief has been asked and where no one has We are all interested in those people, and I suggest to gentlemen to follow that plan to-day.

But it is not my purpose to-day to enter into a discussion of the constitutionality of this proposition. That has been settled in the past. I want to direct your attention for a moment particularly to one feature of the possibilities of this legislation, When President Wilson was in Europe he cabled to this country, asking for $100,000,000 to be expended for the relief of the poor of Europe. This came up January 13, 1919, on page 1372 the RECORD. I offered an amendment to include Armenia in that relief, and it went through, and the people of Armenia received considerable relief. It is true that the Committee on Foreign Affairs adroitly changed Armenia to "the sections contiguous to Europe," and thus prevented any recognition of Armenia by our Government, and thus encouraged the Turks to continue the massacres and caused the death of thousands of Armenians. But this safeguarded the Turkish Empire and its bonds intact for Paris, London, and New York. Over in the Committee on Military Affairs they were working the other day upon a bill to use $4,000,000 worth of military supplies in this Russian territory. We directed their attention to the necessities of Armenia and asked that Armenia be included, and it was done, and you will find that in that same resolution.

I ask this House to make the same change in this bill in The Volga order that the same result may be achieved now. region is poor, but everything that has been happening in the Volga region this year has been happening for at least two years and is continuing also in Armenia. The Turkish and Russian Governments took not only one-third of their crops, but all that they could find. They have exhausted their resources, A million and a half people, half a million of whom are refugees, have gone in there. Their seed crops have failed. God Almighty seems to have forgotten Armenia. I think it is time for a Christian Congress and a Christian country to do something for

This is not an appeal for charity. This is a request that you do justice to your allies and pay your debts. You are not only the custodian of the pocketbook of the American people but the custodian of the honor of the American people as well. From the last great war just one single, solitary people emerged from the contest free as a result of their own exertions and has finally triumphed and won their liberty on the battle field unaided and unassisted. That people is the people of Armenia. The men of that country, per capita, did more to make this war a success than any other people. They did more fighting per capita, they secured more results per capita, than the men of any other race or nation.

In that great maze of circumstances over there it seems we have lost track of them. You must remember that when the armistice was signed Armenia was a free Republic, with 30,000 square miles of territory, having 2,000,000 people, collecting their taxes, and conducting their government with good results. You must remember that from November, 1917, to December, 1920, not one Russian soldier had been in their country. You must remember that between 1917 and 1920 not one Turkish soldier invaded Armenia. On the battle field of Sardarabad 20,000 Armenians fought with courage and bravery, pushed to within 20 miles of the Armenian capital, and vanquished the Turks at the base of Mount Ararat. They sent out a proclamation stating that the army was without cartridges and without bread, and the women appeared in there with their cartridges, and for 40 days they fought side by side with the men against the Bolshevik Russians. On the 28th of May declared their independence, and in June they had established themselves in their own government. We did not know or realize what they had done for us.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Kansas

Mr. LITTLE. I ask unanimous consent, Mr. Chairman, for another five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. The time has been fixed by order of the

Mr. LITTLE. Then I ask unanimous consent to extend and revise my remarks.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kansas asks unanimous consent to revise and extend his remarks. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. LITTLE. And I commend to your kindly consideration be Armenians who beat Ludendorff's drive when these Armenians held the oil fields of Baku, deprived the Kaiser of gasoline, fought the Turks to a standstill at Sardarabad, and helped Allenby beat the Turks. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, this bill is to authorize an appropriation to help the starving Russians. The purpose of my amendment is to require that a portion of this fund be sent to the starving Augustians. Armenians, who are fully as destitute as the people on the Volga and who have been our friends and allies in all the mighty struggle, and to whom we are indebted beyond measure for military achievements of the highest value.

If Armenia is a part of the Russian Soviet's territory technically, they come under this bill just the same as the Volga does. If it is not and somebody with the fear of God in his heart, a feeling of common decency in his mind, and a desire to give the Armenians some help in their hour of need can just withhold a point of order the amendment can be put through and the Armenians saved for the hour at least. Furthermore, when the Turks find that Uncle Sam has his eye on Armenia and intends to assist her the Turkish massacres will stop. For a number of years I have been fighting for the recognition of Armenia on this floor with motions that were headed off by points of order only, and these points of order which deprived Armenia of a recognition by this country that would have enabled her to maintain her country against the Turks, have been responsible for the death of a million men and women in the hills and on the plains of that first Christian country. point of order is withheld here we can right now get a chance to assist the people who have done so much to help win the war.

Mr. Chairman, this matter has been settled before. tleman from Pennsylvania gets up and makes the point of order that the amendment is not germane. He gives no reason for it. About three years ago this matter came up, when the present occupant of the chair was probably in the House. A resolution similar to this was presented, to authorize the expenditure by the President in Europe of $100,000.000 for the poor of Europe. I presented an amendment, to which the gentieman in charge of the bill, Mr. Sherley, very strenuously objected; that amendment giving aid also to Armenia. It was practically the same amendment that I have presented here. As I say, the gentleman in charge of that bill very strenuously objected to my amendment and it was discussed from a good many angles. It was finally decided that it was entitled to go into the bill, and it went in. This was done January 13, 1919, as I said awhile ago here. There was a slight change in the wording of the resolution. Originally it provided for the poor of Europe. Armenia is in Asia, and it was finally amended to read "Europe and contiguous territory."

I take it that decision is decisive of the situation here. If the gentleman has any reason for upsetting what was decided there, I shall be glad to hear it, and I should hate to feel that an ancient, settled, and decided proposition like that was overruled without any reason. If the gentleman has anything to say about it, I may want to discuss it further; but the precedent is on my side, and there is no reason on earth why it should not be sustained. At that time, January 13, 1919, the gentleman from Kansas presented to the House the reasons why he thought a part of the $100,000,000 President Wilson was to spend in Europe for the poor should go to Armenia. The gentleman from Kentucky the poor should go to Armenia. The gentieman from Kentucky [Mr. Sherley] had charge of the resolution, and he, after vigorously opposing the change, made to the gentleman from Kansas the suggestion that the Kansan permit the word "Armenia" to be stricken out and the words "territory contiguous in Asia" inserted. The feeling of the House was for Armenia, and that resolution should have been made to recognize Armenia, and that resolution should have been made to recognize the day, and that would have sayed the lives. menia's existence that day, and that would have saved the lives of thousands of people afterwards murdered by the Turks. The gentleman from Kansas was so earnestly desirous of succoring the starved Armenians that he did not take into consideration the other side of the situation, and he agreed to let "Armenia" be superseded by "contiguous territory in Asla," and several millions of that money was actually expended in Armenia, to their great benefit.

On January 7, 1919 (RECORD, 1108), Mr. Sherley presented the resolution for spending $100,000,000 in Europe for the poor, and asked for unanimous consent for considering it immediately. The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. LITTLE] said:

The gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Little] said:

Mr. Little. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I notice this relief is confined entirely to Europe. There are several million Armenian Christians on the borders of Europe. How does it happen that they are not included in this measure?

Mr. Sherler. The request that came by virtue of the cable from the President to the Secretary of the Treasury, and which is found in House Document 1040, confined it to Europe.

Mr. Little. Would not the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations accept and agree to an amendment including Armenia?

Mr. Sherler. I would not feel warranted at this time to amnounce that I would accept such an amendment.

Mr. Little. If the gentleman from Kentucky will modify his request so as to afford an opportunity for amendment, I will not object; but if he will not, I shall object.

On January 13 this resolution did come up, and the contleman

On January 13 this resolution did come up, and the gentleman from Kansas offered the amendment to include Armenia, with the result already stated, and securing the words "contiguous territory in Asia.

In the time between January 6 and January 13 a cable was sent to Europe inquiring whether the change could be made to include Armenia by that name, and the answer was "No." The effect of all this was to prevent the Congress of the United States from saying a word to acknowledge the independence of Armenia, and a word then would have saved a million of Armenian lives then and since.

AFTER SUBSEQUENT DEBATE.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is ready to rule. Mr. LITTLE. I should like to be heard for a moment. Was that rule followed in the Sixty-sixth Congress?

Mr. TEMPLE. I am not at all responsible for the rulings of the Speaker of a former Congress. I am only calling attention to the rule.

Mr. LITTLE. The rule was the same at the time this other action was taken. Nobody at that time seriously considered following it along this line. I want to ask the gentleman another question right here, by the way: Is Armenia considered a part of Russia under this bill?

Mr. TEMPLE. That is not a question for me to decide, and I do not think it is pertinent to the gentleman's argument.

Mr. LITTLE. Very well, if Armenia is a part of Russia, then it is the same subject, and the gentleman can not suggest then that his rule applies, because it would be simply a part. Somebody says it is not necessary. If it is not necessary and does not make any change, for Heaven's sake what is the objection?

Now, let us go a step further. Let us look at the principle involved. There are two ways of looking at all legislation. One is a broad interpretation and the other is a narrow interpretation of the rule to be applied. We know that the courts in a certain line of cases have adopted a very broad construc-tion of the Constitution itself. Now, you can not say, as the gentleman evidently means, although he has not said so yet, that this is simply a bill to help the suffering people of the Volga. That is true to some extent as it stands now, perhaps, but it is also true that this is a bill to help suffering in the Orient. Now, if a man is narrow enough between the eyes so that he wants to take a constricted view of it he can say, of course, that there is nobody hungry except the people in the Volga, and that it was not the intention of this bill to help anybody else. If he is a broad, generous, liberal-minded man, he can just as easily interpret it to mean that it is for the relief of hunger and suffering among those who fought and died for this Republic as well as for civilization in Armenia. [Applause.

From the 6th day of January, 1919, when this $100,000,000 helping resolution was offered to the House, until this day, they have been successful in preventing the Congress of the United States from giving to the Republic of Armenia any technical and legal recognition that would have put that little Republic on its feet to face the world and the Turks, except the other day, when we did induce the Committee on Military Affairs to include a somewhat lame and halting reference to Russian Armenia in the bill with regard to a certain $4,000,000 worth of American supplies now on hand, and it is evidently the purpose of those in charge of this bill that not that much of a recognition shall go into it if a point of order has its oldtime efficiency to assist the Turks in their campaigns of slaughter and destruction of the first Christian nation. A point of order has murdered more Armenians in the last five years than the Turks butchered in the nineteenth century.

This point of order has no strength; it is entirely without force. The Russians are holding Armenia as a part of their great nation. The bill is to help the folks of that nation, and the lights of Armenian liberty have flickered out and there is only a Soviet tallow candle shining in Erivan, the Armenian capital. Under this bill to expend this money in Russia the administration will be authorized to spend it in Russian Armenia and, if they have any bowels of compassion, will undoubtedly do so eventually. The only purpose to be served in defeating this amendment is the plan to refuse any recognition to Armenia. This will preserve intact the Russian nation and include Armenia in it, so that they will have to pay taxes to pay the Russian bonds held in London and Paris, and no matter how much of this money goes to Armenia eventually, the Russian bonds will still be intact and the point of order will be consistent. ARMENIA FRRED ITSELF.

On the 28th day of May, 1918, the Armenians promulgated their Declaration of Independence, and that day is their 4th of July. The country of which their Government had possession consisted of about 20,000 square miles at that moment and had some 2,000,000 inhabitants, most of whom were Armenians. They established the capital of their republican Government with its cabinet and chamber of deputies at Eri-van, a city of 90,000 people, within view of Mount Ararat and on the railroad line with Batum and Baku to Tabriz, Persia, and Erzerum, Turkey. They had in the field at that moment and Erzerum, Turkey. They had in the field at that moment some 25,000 Armenian soldiers. When Armenian independence was declared, the Armenian general, Bagratouni, with some 12,000 soldiers, all Armenians, was in possession of the great oil city on the Caspian of Baku, which had some 300,000 inhabitants, and his control extended for some 50 miles in every direction over a country inhabited by Tartars, and he had absolute control from January to September of that year of the greatest oil fields in the world, Europe's oil supply. He had his soldiers were loval citizens and soldiers of the Repuband his soldiers were loyal citizens and soldiers of the Republic with its capital at Erivan.

ARMENIA INDEPENDENT MAY 29, 1918.

Early in June, 1918, the Turks proposed to the Republic of Armenia, with its capital at Erivan, to begin negotiations of peace, and the armistice was granted and negotiations were opened, a delegation representing Armenia going to Constanti-nople. Preliminary to the negotiations, the Turks acknowl-edged the independence of Armenia as of May 28, 1918. During the participation of the Russians in the war some 160,000 Armenians fought in the Russian ranks. Kerensky's chief of staff was the Armenian soldier, Bagratouni, who furnished the brains for the temporary successes Kerensky achieved. When the Russian collapse came and their soldiers all left for home, Bagratouni, en route for Armenia, found himself at Baku without transportation, assembled 12,000 of his companions in the same condition, and seized the oil fields, the most brilliant stroke of arms achieved from the beginning to the end of the Great War, and held that for eight months, thus dominating the fuel supply for the German automobiles and for the airplanes. When that collapse came some 35,000 Armenians were in the Russian Army on the Turkish front. As the Russians left for their homes by way of Baku, these Armenians seized the Turkish front with such few Russians as stayed with them from Van on the Persian border through Erzinjan—160 miles southwest of the old "ussian-Turkish border—on up to and including Trebizond, in u which the Turks had been driven.

In November immediately the Armenian leaders organized from Erivan a national army, sending them to the Turkish front and preserving law and order throughout Russian Armenia. On the eastern front they found the Tartars at conflict with them along the Karabagh Mountains, making an extended effort to assist the Turks in front of Erzinjan and Trebizond. The Armenians, preparing for a governmental organization through December and January, were fighting the Turks to the west and the Tartars to the east of them, but were gradually pushed back by the Turks, who by the close of February had seized Ezeroum, Van, Trebizond in Turkish Armenia, and Kars in Russian Armenia.

THE BATTLE OF SARDARABAD.

On the 22d day of May, 1918, some 20,000 Armenians under Nazarbakof, Silikoff, and Piramoff, old soldiers trained in Russia, and Dro, an Armenian partisan chief from the mountains, made their last stand against some 30,000 Turks under Khalil Pasha at Sardarabad, at the foot of Mount Ararat, on the plains of Erivan, within 40 miles of that capital and within 20 miles of Echtmiadzin, for fifteen centuries the seat of their religion. Fighting with a valor born of despair for four days and losing 4,000 men, the Turks losing 9,000, they beat the Turkish Empire to a standstill and drove Khalil Pasha and his army from the field in full flight for the fortifications of Alexandropol, 60 miles from the field of battle, on which the Armenians that day won their independence from the Turks. At once they declared their independence, the Turks having asked for peace, and took their place among the nations of the world, the only nation in all this great struggle that won their independence by the sword on the field of battle, unaided and unassisted by any ally, a feat wholly unequaled by that of any other people of this century.

A few days before, Nazarbakoff, the commander in chief at Erivan, issued a pronunclamento making a last appeal to the Armenian people for their army. He told them that the soldiers were practically out of provisions and ammunition and urged all Armenians to hasten at once to Sardarabad with whatever supplies of provisions or ammunition they could bring to the army—and for miles around the women came during the fight with aprons filled with cartridges and bread to the fighting men of the oldest Christian nation in the world—and thus was won the most famous battle fought in Asia in this century, and you gentlemen and the reader never heard of it until now.

After the Russian collapse of November, the people of Transcaucasia, Armenians, Georgians, and Tartars, proceeded to organize at the great city of Tiffis in February, 1918, a provisional government which governed Armenia, Georgia, Azerbijan, and organized in February, 1918, as such provisional government. On the 22d day of April, 1918, this Transcaucasian Parliament declared their independence and conducted affairs for some five weeks, when, friction arising, they separated and each declared its own independence, the Armenians as aforesaid, May 28, 1918. The difficulty was that the Tartars, being Moslems, were determined to assist the Turks, and the Armenians declined to accede to any such arrangement and were determined to assist our allies in their fight against Germany, Austria, and Turkey.

So after the battle of Sardarabad, Armenia became an independent Republic by agreement with Turkey. Before their own organization definitely as a Republic, they had actually been in control of all the country from Erzinjan in Turkey, some 300 miles beyond the Karabagh Mountains, a territory containing about 100,000 square miles and some 3,000,000 of people.

TURKS TO BAKU.

Meanwhile the Germans had been desperately urging the Turks to get the oil fields, and just as soon as the Turkish armies made peace with the Armenian armies who beat them at Sardarabad, Noori Pasha marched first eight or ten thousand and later twice as many more, 80 miles from Alexandropole northeast to the railroad from Batum to Baku and atacked Bagratouni and his Armenians toward the last of June, 1918. From the 1st of July until the middle of September, Bagratouni held the oil fields in Baku against the best soldiers the Turks had. On the 1st of August they reached him with 1,200 British reinforcements who came from Teheran, Persia, sailing across the Caspian from Enzeli to Baku, and for just two weeks the English stayed with the Armenians.

The English then saw that they could not beat the Turks; that what the Armenians had done there was impossible and could not have happened and could not happen, and withdrew their troops to Persia, leaving Bagretouni alone with his Armenians. and for a month after that the Armenians held Baku and the oil fields and accomplished what the inefficient and incompetent Britishers said could not be done, and if the British officer had held his ground, as the Armenians held theirs for 30 days afterwards, the Turks never would have entered Baku and the oil fields, and the Bolsheviks never could have gotten down through Baku into Tiflis and Erivan and there would not at this minute be a Turkish soldier between Baku and Erzinjan. The desertion of Bagratouni at Baku August 15, 1918, by an alleged British soldier lost for the time the victory the Armenians had won at Sardarabad. Finally, 30 days later, after the departure of the British soldiers, Bagratouni, without sup-plies and without munitions of war, found himself forced to evacuate the oil fields and retire to Persia with 10,000 victorious Armenians, who asked nothing of their allies but cartridges Armenians, who asked nothing of their aims but the standard and food, on which Christendom failed them. Sixty days later, when the armistice came in Europe, the Turks were in possession of Baku and the oil fields, which soon fell a prey to the Bolsheviks. At the close of October, in 1918, the Turks and Bolsheviks. At the close of October, in 1918, the Turks and the English at Constantinople, after Allenby's victory over the Turks in Palestine, made an armistice with the Turks under which the Turks withdrew all their soldiers from Baku, Kars, Alexandropol, and Russian Transcaucasia. During the interim between May 28 and after Sardarabad, until the victory in Palestine and the armistice between the English and their allies and the Turks, the Armenians had maintained their seat of government at Erivan. Thereupon they immediately took possession of Kars, Alexandropol, and all Russian Armenia, containing 30,000 square miles and 2,000,000 of people. On the 1st of November, 1918, Armenia was a republic of 30,000 square miles and 2,000,000 of people, with a capital at Erivan, a republic whose bitterest enemies at hand had conceded its independence from May 28 to November 1, a period of five full months, and were awaiting the decision of their allies to occupy Turkish Armenia, and for 25 months, until December, 1920, they were in full possession of their republic of 30,000 square miles, maintaining law and order and ministering justice and advancing education and caring for some hundreds of thousands of Christian refugees driven from Turkey.

During the same time Georgia was free, governing itself and the Tartars of Azerbijan, with their capital at Baku, after Bagratouni withdrew and the Turks finally left. In other words, in two and a half years that little mountain Republic maintained itself without any outside help except the flour sent by the American Government from the fund of $100,000,000, asked for by President Wilson for Europe, on which, by the motion of Mr. Little, of Kansas, Armenia secured some ten millions of dollars.

ARMENIAN TAXES.

During these two and a half years the Armenian Republic continued the assessment of taxes similar to those levied by Russia, and, notwithstanding the condition of the country, the Armenians were so loyal that the Government collected some 80 per cent of the amount assessed, while the Governments of Azerbijan and Georgia were practically unable to collect any at all, securing only 5 or 6 per cent.

TREATY OF SEVRES.

In August, 1920, the representatives of Great Britain, France, Italy, Serbia, Greece, Turkey, Rumania, Japan, Poland, Belgium, Armenia, Czechoslovakia, all the allied powers except the United States of America, assembled at Sevres, France, to formulate the treaty of Sevres, asserting and maintaining and establishing the rights of these nations, of whom Armenia had accomplished more against the fee than any except Great Britain, France, and Serbia. The treaty was made and signed by these nations, including the representatives of the Turkish Government, then and there recognizing the independence of Armenia and its Government extending over the 30,000 square miles, as aforesaid, and adding thereto Turkish Armenia, the boundaries of which should be established by the President of the United States. On the 22d day of November, 1920, the President of the United States gave to Armenia under this treaty, with the agreement of Turkey, the four vilayets or Provinces of Ezeroum, Trebizond, Bittlis, and Van, Turkish Armenia, and giving them the Black Sea seaport of Trebizond. When this was done the Republic of Armenia consisted of a total of 80,000 square miles, containing 3,000,000 of people. This was the law of the world on the 22d day of November, 1920.

THE TURKS IN ARMENIA.

After the October armistice between the Turks and the Allies the Turks, as aforesaid, withdrew entirely from Russian Armenia, the last of their soldiers being out of there early in 1919, and no more Turks entered Russian Armenia until September, 1920. By that time the Bolsheviks were in full control of Russia and Baku. Interested parties among the Allies, who should have stood by Armenia, entered into an understanding with the Turks, and with their encouragement the Turks struck hands with the Bolsheviks. A Bolshevik army streamed down into the Caucasus from Baku to Erivan in December, 1920, and at the same moment the Turks found their way into Russian Armenia at Kars and Alexandropol. The Allies, for whom the Armenians had sacrificed and fought, making pos-sible Allenby's victory and making impossible Ludendorff's drive to Paris, found themselves isolated and alone. For 30 days the Bolsheviks were at Erivan, and then in desperation the Armenian citizens chased them out of town, and in another 30 days the Bolsheviks in great force were back at Erivan; and finally, in April, 1921, finding they could not beat Turkey and Russia united, the Armenians withdrew to the shelter of Karabagh Mountains, and their eagle perched on the heights of the Karabaghs in the inaccessible mountain Province of Zangazur, at the little city of Gerroosee, with 3,000 people. There they established their chamber of deputies, their cabinet, and their capital at Varatzian. There they still remain— Nishdek and 10,000 Armenian soldiers and that gallant little mountain Republic, which is still in existence, from May 28, 1918, down to this 5th day of August, 1921, three years and two months. Counting from the actual time of their control— it began in November, 1917—and it is then almost four years that the Armenians have maintained a government of their

Yet people talk of a mandate. Armenia desires no mandate; never has desired a mandate. All that Armenia asks of a Christian civilization is that they give her her share of the funds that these allies of Sevres have demanded the Germans shall supply to restore the world they tried to confiscate. If the allies of Sevres provide an equitable adjustment of the German funds, that money will supply the Armenians with everything needed to keep their people on foot, to plant their crops, to restore their ruined farms and villages, to place arms and ammunition in the hands of their soldiers for self-protec-tion, and to build roads and railways to the sea that would put them in communication with the world. All that they ask of the greatest Christian Republic in the world is to use its great moral influence to induce the people of Europe, whom we have saved from ruin, to do justice and equity to the oldest of the Christian Republics, to the most gallant little nation on the face of the globe.

Near Bazue and other southern ports of Armenia is a tribe
Ezidi. They are not Christians, neither are they Moslems. They have their own religion, which comes from antiquity. As they were persecuted by the Moslem Turks, they have been always friendly with the Armenians. Some 35,000 of them are living in Russian Armenia now, and from the beginning of the war they were all the time cooperating with the Armenians against the In the Battle of Sardarabad they had 500 horsemen assisting the Armenians, and when in the heat of battle the Armenian commander-Piramoff-ordered the Ezidi to make a demonstration on the rear of the Turkish infantry on the Turkish right, their chief—Temoor Beg—at the head of his horsemen, dashed through the Turkish lines directly, making a panic among the Turkish ranks, and achieved the fate of the battle.

A RÉSUMÉ.

At the time of the armistice in November, 1918, the Armenian Republic had an area of 30,000 square miles for the population of 2,000,000 people, an army of some 30,000, a republic government, capital at Erivan, a city of 90,000, and they had been officially free from May 28, 1918, and practically free from November, 1917. And from January to September, 1918, they had been in full possession of the great oil city of Baku on the Caspian. In November, 1918, the Turks and the Russians withdrew from any claim on Russian Armenia.

SEVERS TREATY.

In August, 1920, the Government of our allies and of Turkey agreed to the Sevies treaty, acknowledging the independence of Armenia, of 30,000 square miles in Russia, and of Turkish Armenia, and leaving to the President of the United States Turkish Armenia.

ON NOVEMBER 22, 1920, HE GAVE TO THE ABMENIAN REPUBLIC THE FOUR PROVINCES OF EZEROUM, TREBIZOND, BITLIS, AND VAN, MAKING A TOTAL OF 80,000 SQUARE MILES FOR 3,000,000 PEOPLE. IF THE ALLIED NATIONS, FOR WHOM ABMENIA FOUGHT, HAD ADHERED TO THE TERMS OF THAT TREATY AND TREATED ARMENIA ONE-TENTH

AS FAITHFULLY AS ARMENIA TREATED THEM, THESE 80,000 SQUARE MILES WHICH ARMENIA WON ON THE BATTLE FIELD WOULD BE THE ABMENIAN REPUBLIC TO-DAY.

In December, 1920, the Bolshevik army began to stream into Caucasus, and the Turks contemporaneously seized Kars and Alexandropol and the Armenians were overwhelmed. The Soviet Republic was established in Armenia, and is still in pos-session June 27, 1922. Russia and Turkey both recognize it as

There were no Turkish soldiers in Russian Armenia for 18 months from early in 1919 to September, 1920, and no Russian soldiers entered there from November, 1917, to December, 1920. Then the Turks seized Kars and Alexandropol, and finally, in April, 1921, the Armenians were overwhelmed. October 1, 1918, Damascus fell to Allenby.

AMERICA'S DUTY IN 1921.

The time has come when the American Republic should take its place at the council table of the nations and seek enforcement of the decrees its soldiers registered on the battle fields of France. The judicious and timely insistence by our State Department upon the release of American prisoners in Moscow and that concession by the Russians has opened the door to vast possibilities. America should now definitely inform Russia that before our Republic opens up negotiations of friendly relations, Russia should show her respect for the rights of other nations by withdrawing her invading troops from Armenia, Georgia, Azerbijan, and Dagastan. Then, those peoples will reestablish their local governments and law and order will be maintained there, and the United States should promptly recognize its sister and allied Republic of Armenia, send a minister to Erivan, and receive one here.

After 500 years of conquest by the sword, the outlawed Turk fights with his back to the wall against the Greek who No statesman. he has plundered for half a thousand years. no Christian, can give any consideration whatever to the de-mands of the Turk. The Greeks are now in possession of a third of Anatolia. Our Government would do well to convey to Great Britain, France, and Italy the present opinion, the fixed opinion of the American people that any aid rendered by France or Italy to the Turk at this juncture would be considered by Christendom as an unfriendly act, and civiliza-tion should give its moral support and such financial aid as is necessary to the Greek from this day. Angora and Con-stantinople should be informed that every Turkish soldier must be withdrawn from the Armenian vilayets, that those provinces may be left free to join with Russian Armenia in that Republic. The victories of the Greeks have now almost stripped that region of Turkish soldiers withdrawn to assist Keman Pasha fight for Anatolia. The views of the United States that this should be done and that the treaty of Sevres should be carried out can very reasonably be presented to our allies in Europe, and the combined word of America, Great Britain, France, Italy, and Serbia can express to the Turk the final opinion of mankind that if there shall remain in Anatolia any country of the Turks to rape, rapine, loot, and murder, which is the only Turkish method of government, it must be confined to Turkish Anatolia, and Armenia left free.

Many waters have gone over the dam since the gentleman from Kansas spoke in 1921 on this subject. Many thousands have died of hunger and cold, vast hosts of men and women have died by the hands of the Turks, from Erzerum to Harpoot. The scanty remnants of that ancient, brilliant, and gallant race have been scattered from Asia Minor to the four quarters of the globe since the Foreign Affairs Committee maintained the lofty dignity of their point of order that it was not ger-mane to that bill to aid the Russians from starving in the

But time has already vindicated the charge that the point of order was invalid and should have been overruled, for the Government of the United States has already given it the lie and sent 6,000,000 tons of foodstuffs into Russian Armenia with the money Congress authorizd to be expended, as the committee insisted, in the valley of the Volga.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS.

By reason of the right given me to revise and extend my remarks in the debate on the bill in progress when the remarks at the beginning hereof were made in 1921 in Congress, I present herewith certain quotations from leading magazines and sent herewith certain quotations from leading magazines and papers appearing since then and calling attention to the dire and awful condition of the Armenian people. At that time it was impossible to convince the House, and particularly the Foreign Affairs Committee, which had charge of that legislation, that there was any necessity for such aid to be extended to Armenia, and they proceeded with calm disdain for any Armenian difficulties to put through their bill as they made it, which is apparently the loftiest mark of statesmanship in Congress a good deal of the time.

[From Leslie's Weekly, November 26, 1921.] THE STARVING ARMENIANS.
(By Paxten Hibben, F. R. G. S.)

Before I left Constantinopie to come into Anatolia and Transcaucasia Admiral Bristol, the United States high commissioner to Turkey, sent for me. He said:

"I want you to be fair to the Turk. Just tell all the truth, without prejudice one way or the other, and it will be all right." So I said I would. And what I have nothing whatever against the Turk myself. These are the facts. Draw your own conclusions.

When I stepped off the train at Alexandropol, Armenia, ones a vast Russian garrison town housing 90,000 soldiers and the most important railway junction of Transcaucasia, through which Persia, Turkey, and Russia are all three connected by rail, I had to push my way through a crowd of refugees lining the platform of the station. There were among them hundreds of children quite naked, who clawed at my clothes and begged for bread, not in the sing-song of the professional child beggar of the streets of eastern cities but with a desperate insistence, a sort of sobbing, half-mad chatter, with the words "hunger" and "bread" tumbling over one another, with no sense in it all. The grown-up people were silent, staring ahead of them with vacant eyes. What they were was not clothing, but rags pleced together with bits of old sacking, disintegrating remnants of sheepskin, and odds and ends like the filtby trove of garbage caus and back lots. And with—they were half naked, barefoot—and with their unkempt hair and incredible emaciation they seemed specters from some drawing by Gustave Horé.

As I made my way through the crowd of these unnoving hopeless people, tugged at by children's hands, I could not take my eyes off of Gustave Doré.

As I made my way through the crowd of these unmoving hopeless people, tugged at by children's hands, I could not take my eyes off of one figure standing in the station doorway, holding the jamb with clawing hands and swaying peritously. His face had that unreal waxen consistency of the face of a dead man in a coffin. I had watched him creep up to a standing posture by holding to the door, and now as he seemed about to try to walk I wanted to shout to him that he could not make it.

not make it.

He only took two steps and fell headlong, slithering down to the platform through the close-packed crowd. When they picked him up he was dead. I asked a soldier of the Red Guard what had been the matter with the man. He shrugged his shoulders. "Starvation," he said.

said.

As I walked through the dim hallway of the station I could scarcely make my way for the women and children huddled in heaps on the floor, lying all piled together, listless and uncaring whether they were stepped on or not. One woman sat, stolid, her hack against the wall, a shapeless, toru piece of old skirt over head and shoulders, the only covering above her waist. In the crook of her arm she held a baby so small and with such thin legs and arms that it looked like a doll, trying to nurse it at a breast that held nothing. The baby turned its head from side to side, crying in a thin little voice like a whisper of misery.

covering above her waist. In the crook of her arm she heid a boby so small and with such thin legs and arms that it looked like a doll, trying to nurse it at a breast that held nothing. The baby turned its heard from side to side, crying in a thin little voice like a whisper of misery.

Outside, in the scorching sun and the relatively clear air I drew a long breath, fighting down the nusea that had selzed me. Across from the station I could see more groups of refugees camped on the ground, some of them with a few possessions still—a cup, a pot made of an old gasoline tin, a bundle of rags under which to sleep at night. Nothing vise.

To get away from them I jumped off the side of the platform onto what I took to be a piece of discarded sacking, next a torn and dirtistaned comforter, evidently covering something. As my boot struck the piece of sacking all little cry came from it. I tried to get my foot out of the way, and my spur caught in the sacking and carried it away. Something living under the comforter lifted a corner and looked out at me, and I turned to see what I had narrowly missed stepping on. It was a naked child, just born, its eyes not yet open and out from the shadow of the comforter there peered the mother, her eyes big with suffering, and her skin hot with fever.

I got away somehow, stumbiling toward a cab at the corner of the station. And then, just as I had almost got to the cab and nway from still this hortible nightmare I came upon the worst of it. Right at the corner of the station, in the het sun, almost naked and pitifully emaciated lay a boy, quite dead, his staring eyes still open. And people came and went about their business—women carrying water from the station hydrant, cab driving up and off again, little skeleton children piaying about, all close to where he lay. And no one paid the slightest attention to the pitiful body, lying there in the sun. In time the dead wargon would pass the station in its daily rounds, and he would be piled on it with the others and taken away. There wa

Because in this part of the world newspapers are few and events re recounted from mouth to mouth, with the usual accretions that follow naturally upon such a method of recording history. I went out to see these 140 villages around Alexandropol from which the Turks were said to have driven thousands of wretched relies of humanity that had flocked into the railway center in the hope of finding food or of getting away to somewhere where food could be had. All around the Schoragul plain I went from village to village, and always it was the same story; the pathetic, haif underground dwellings of these people; where man and beast alike lived in meticulous cleanliness and the frank simplicity of very old races were destroyed. The roof beams, hewn logs for the most part, almost impossible to replace in a country where no troe is seen in days of travel, had been burned. Where communes possessed, as frequently they did, a modern American or Swediah plow, harrow, or respec for the common use the machine was left but the axle was carried away or some essential plu or bolt smashed into uselessness. And not a beast of burden, an ox to pull a plow or an ass to carry grain or a cow to give milk for the babies who seem to be born every few minutes in this prolific land. The country is stripped clean.

And as I made my way around among the villages toward the north

And as I made my way around among the villages toward the north of Alexandropol I came at last to a little cluster of them at the foot and on the slopes of Shti Tapa, some 25 versts northeast of Alexandropol on the Karakliss main road. About 2 miles from Akh, Boolag I stopped a peasant on the road and asked if the Turks had been in that part of the valley, too.

"Come with me," he said. And he led me to a bridge over what would be a mountain torrent in the winter, running out of a gorge called Madjiloom Djoor. "Sprak zoor" (White Spring Creek), he said, pointing to the creek, and his finger pleked out here and there on the dry, white stones of the bed of the stream strange looking objects. They seemed to be garments, women's garments, skirts, shawls, here and there a shoe or a belt, all clinging to the rocks as if the water had left them there when the creek dried up under the summer sun. I climbed down into the bed of the creek but the peasant dragged me on up the ravine.

About 200 yards farther I suddenly came upon a human skull. Then had left them there when the creek dried up under the summer sun. I climbed down into the bed of the creek but the peasant dragged me on up the ravine.

About 200 yards farther I suddenly came upon a human skull. Then another. Then a skeleton, all lying stretched ont, complete. Half way up the gravel bank a shin bone stuck out with a shoe and stocking still on the end of it. The bed of the stream was dotted with bones. Basil Soorp Neabanian, my guide said his name was, of Akh-Boolag, took me up on the bank, which for about 100 yards was broad and faix, some 30 feet above the bottom of the stream. Here there were scores of graves, weighted down with stones to keep out marauding animals. And from that height one could look up and down the stream where skulls were sown like the stones in the bed of the stream and skeletons lay higgledy-piggledy among the fading remnants of what was once clotthing. On this height above the stream I stooped down and picked up an empty rific cartridge. It bore the Turkish date of 1322 and the inscription Mauser and the star and crescent. There were such shells all about this high ground.

I asked Basil to tell me about it. Here it is, or as much of it as I can tell for publication, for some of the details are not printable: It was late in October when the Turks came to this district, Basil said, or early in November. At first they only took everything away—cattle, grain, kitchen utensils, farming implements, everything. Then they began looting the houses for personal effects. Finally, one day they gathered all the men of Akh-Boolag into the two largest bouses of the village and set them saire, with straw piled all over them to see that they burned. The women, Basil said, they took all in one great batch to the place where we were standing in Maddioom Dioor and, lining them up along the edge of the gravel bank, first picked out 500 of the prettler ones, whom they sent back to the Turkish Army, and then shot or bagoneted the rest.

"How many of them were there in all?" I asked. "It is when the thing had taken place, or who had hidden or field and so escaped. They all told me the same story, both as to the women and the men.

A little way from the Djadool Station, on the Alexandropol-Tiffis Railway, in another similar ravine, Moerati Djoor, near the village of Akin-Kilissa, there was another such collection of skeletons and graves—only this time of men. Here Aram Baloyants told the story—how between 1,000 and 1,500 men from the villages of Akh-Kilissa, Arakhvali, Darbant, and Karabon were taken out by the Turks of an artiliery regiment stationed near the railway, bound together in batches, and bayoneted. Many of the corpses had 30 bayonet wounds when they were found in the spring, Aram said. And Arabilools Arpikias, the station master at Djadjool, and Saribek Rafacioli, the track-repair man, confirmed the story.

As I walked back to the road through the high grass I stumbled on something. It was the torso and one thigh of one of those who had been buried too shallowly. And that's all.

Back in Alexandropol again, one day I came upon the dead wagon making its sinister rounds, and followed it to the plat beyond the railway tracks, where every grave is a trench that holds the day's toll of those who have died of hunger, of cholera, of exposure, of despair. The morning's load that day was only nine.

"Not much business to-day," grimned the driver. "Weather's too fine. Wait till it turns cold." A genial soul, going about his ghasily task with a certain cheer, as why not? He piled them in the trench, one atop the other, old women, bearded old men, little girls, bables, all who were too weak, too undernourished to survive.

"They make a fine harvest for us gravediggers, the Turks," he went in harvest for the gravediggers, the Turks. And that's all.

ARMENIA TO-DAY.

(By John H. Finley.)

(Doctor Finley was at the head of the Red Cross committee in Palestine during the last months of the war. After the armistice he was the first American to make his way from the Euphrates to Constantinople, the object of his going being to bring the Red Cross forces into contact with those of the Near East Relief approaching from Constantinople. Under the arrangement made at this time the Near East took over all the work in that region, and has since then carried it on with treless energy and heroism. Doctor Finley is now vice chairman of the Near East Relief organization,—The Editor.)

Conditions in Armenia to-day are worse than they have been at any time since the armistice. Such is the statement made by a commission of the Near East Relief, recently returned from a survey of conditions throughout the field of operations of that organization. Four hundred thousand people are homeless and destitute; 100,000 orphaned children are without shelter or food.

To the American people, long since wearled with the story of the suffering of this tragic nation, the statement must be dismail and disheartening. Millions of dollars have been given and dispensed for the saving of Armenia, and the Armenians are to-day worse off than ever before. Yet a brief consideration of events in this part of the world explains very clearly not only the situation that now exists but our responsibility for it.

While the rest of the world has been fighting its way out of the chaos of war, reestablishing its economic and industrial life and rebuilding its resources. Armenia has remained a battle field. Warring armies have continued to lay waste her fields and destroy her homes and render her people destitute. When at last peace came, with the establishment of the present Government of Armenia last spring, it was too late. The resources of the Armenians were exhausted. Their fields were barren. Famine was upon them.

The American commission found, in the principal cities of Armenia, a state of appalling want, with the dead lying about the str hundreds of the stronger on the roofs of the cars, on the bumpers, anywhere that foothold could be secured, all in search for food that did not exist.

As the American party descended from its train at Alexandropol, the old Russian garrison town and railway center of Transcaucasia, they stumbled across the dead body of a little boy, lying on the tracks. A grown man, livid with cholera, starting toward their car to ask for a bit of bread fell dead at their feet. At every turn new instances of the same harrowing kind gave evidence of the desperate nature of conditions which this commission of Americans found.

"The cause of the present acute famine situation in Armenia," as stated by the commission of five Americans who visited the famine area in Armenia. "was the destruction of some 140 villages by the invading Turks, from which the populations were driven, and whence all beasts of burden, agricultural and household implements, and furniture were removed by the invaders. The evacuation of this portion of Armenia did not take place until April 21, 1921, too late for any extensive crop to be put in, even had the peasants the draft animals and the implements to plow and sow the ground, which they did not have. Of the original 585,000 Armenian refugees from Turkish Armenia, there remained some 280,000 still unassimilated among the villages of the Armenian Republic, a charge upon the meager resources of the country. To this number the Turkish invasion added some 120,000, making a rough total of about 400,000 homeless refugees now facing winter without food in Armenia.

Of the 50,000 Armenians concentrated in cities and towns, by far the greater part were actually in starving condition when observed by this commission early in August. Children were lying dead in the streets, and the sick and infirm were dying in great numbers daily. Cholera had set in and was making havoc.

The only hope amidst all this misery and despair is the Near East Relief. Within their orphanage, mostly old army barracks turned over to them by are being cared for, at an average cost of less than $10 per month per child.

In all these orphanages an attempt has been made to make the children self-supporting. Recognizing the fact that Armenia's future depends on these boys and glrls, Near East Rellef is endeavoring to train each one in some trade, so that at the earliest possible moment they will be selle to undertake not only their own support but the economic regeneration of the country. Classes in shoemaking, carpentry, printing, talloring for the boys and weaving and sewing for the girls are turning out every month experts in each of these various lines. A few promising children are given especial schooling, with a view to becoming teachers.

This work in the orphanages has served not only to train the children and teach them self-reliance and independence but it has enabled the organization to run its establishments on a most economical basis.

Outside the orphanages 50 000 more children and exceptions.

sus. Outside the orphanages 50,000 more children are fed one meal a y and provided with clothing sent over from America. The meal consists of a bowl of soup and a plece of bread, but it is enough to keep the children from starvation. There are 63 hospitals in various centers throughout the Caucasus and Asia Minor and 129 clinics, to which people come on foot from miles around, often three or four days' pourney come come on toot from miles around, often three or four days' pourney. But oven with all this, the facilities are woefully inadequate. For every child inside an orphanage there is at least one outside, without step of cood or friends. There are thousands of adult refugees whom it is impossible for the Near East Relief, with its limited funds, to help at all, for the saving of the children must come first. In early all of the centers the industrial work, which promised so much, has had to be discontinued for lack of room, lack of material, and lack of skilled workers to carry it on. Education is being given up reluctantly but of necessity in many of the larger orphanages. And, worst of all, dozens and even hundreds of children are being turned away, every day to wander the streets, hungry and half naked. "All this," says Mr. Vickery, general secretary of the organization, "was in August, when the danger from cold and exposure was at a minimum. Even me the toll of deaths was 20 or more in one city alone each minimum. It was the control of the superior of the ground can only be imagined."

ing. What it must be now that the show is of the imagined."

Another element in this distressing situation throughout the Near East was brought to the fore by Capt. Paxton Hibben, recently returned from an investigation of conditions both in Russia and Trans-turned from an investigation of conditions both in Russia and Transcaucasia.

"We are bending every energy to remodel the world on a little higher level than before the war," he said. "But we are permitting millions of children throughout the famine regions of the Near East to grow up with the terrible complexes of moral disintegration that are created by hunger and the sight of hunger all about them. There must somehow be found for them the element of kindliness and brotherhood to be brought into their lives at an age when impressions mold the future of the man or woman."

The problem of the Pacific is ended. The constructive thought of America is free to turn elsewhere in the task of regenerating the world after the war. There is no spot in the world which needs this regenerating influence more than the Near East and no agency of mercy and rehabilitation better prepared to conduct such a work than the Near East Relief. It is a worthy cause and should have the support of America.

BLEEDING TO DEATH.

[From Leslie's Weekly, May 18, 1918.]

[From Leslie's Weekly, May 18, 1918.]

The cradle of Christianity is Armenia. Her story is the most tragle in human history. For 16 centuries, in the face of the cruelest persecutions, her people have been faithful unto death. Not Serbia, nor Poland, nor Belgium, but Armenia furnishes the war's most horrible chapter. The Moslem world in general refused to answer the call for a holy war, but the attempt to exterminate the Armenians has been to the Turks a holy crusade.

The great offense of the Armenians is that they are Christians, and the German Kaiser uttered not one word of protest when his Moslem ally sought to destroy this Christian race. Fresh opportunity for Armenian slaughter in the Caucasus region has come to the Turks through the Russian pence. Germany insisted that all Russian troops be withdrawn from this region. The Russian Government, which yielded to Germany's demand, and the Armenian national council are now protesting against the wholesale slaughter of Armenians in the Caucasus by Turkish troops.

Armenia furnished 160,000 soldiers to Russia in this war, and is still ready to offer an army of 150,000 to fight the Turks. We agree with Representative Little, of Kansas, that the United States could not spend $10,000,000 more wisely than in helping Armenia to get back into the war. Armenia looks to America not only to save her people from German and Turkish slavery but also to save them from starving.

Five dollars will feed a representative of this ancient and noble people from German and Turkish slavery but also to save them from starving.

Five dollars will feed a representative of this ancient and noble Christian race for one month. Send your offering to the Armenian and Syrian relief, I Madison Avenue, New York City. Every cent goes directly to saving starving Armenians. And don't fail to write to the Hon. EDWARD C. LITTLE, M. C., Washington, D. C., for a free copy of his recent remarkable and enlightening speech on the atrocities that Armenia has suffered at the hands of the unspeakable Turk.

It is an amazing revelation well worth reading. It is one of the saddest chapters of this cruci war, sad enough to make the world weep.

POINT OF ORDER OVERRULED.

When the Russian relief bill was under discussion in the House, the gentleman from Kansas offered an amendment specifically directing that a certain portion of the fund appropriated should go to Armenia. The gentleman in charge of the bill made a point of order against the amendment, and his point of order was sustained. In the spring of this year, 1922, the Government department in charge of this fund decided to spend a portion of that money in sending 6,000 tons of foodstuffs to Armenia, and the point of order was finally overruled.

As you know, Armenia, Georgia, and Azerbaijan, lying side by side, occupy the land between the Black and the Caspian Seas. They have, with the approval of the Russian Government, a sort of a working agreement that keeps them out of trouble with each other. Last fall they arranged a possible agreement with the Turkish Government, conceding their existence, whenever the Russ an Soviet should see fit to agree thereto. If Christendom and Turkey had carried out the treaty they made at Sevres, the Armenian Republic would extend from its capital at Erivan, in the mountains, to the seaport of Trebizond, on the Black Sea, and to the borders of Syria far to the South. If that had been done, hundreds of thousands of poor dead people would now be alive and prosperous and happy in a Christian State. The committee should have other sources of information than this department alone.

A few sessions ago, when the Foreign Affairs Committee brought their diplomatic bill before the House, the gentleman from Kansas moved to amend by making the minister to Persia minister to Armenia and Persia, with residence at Erivan, the Armenian capital, on the railroad, near the sea, and better situated for a Persian minister than was even the Persian capital. That would have been an official recognition by this Republic of the Armenian Republic, and Turkey and Russia would not have ventured to raise a hand against the Armenians, and the Armenians would still hold Kars and Alexandropol, which Loris Melikoff, the Armenian general, took from the Turks three generations ago. A point of order stopped that amendment, and the fingers of that point of order, gentlemen, drip with the blood of 500,000 Christians, dead by the hands of the Turk since then. I would not wish to be the man who will be called to answer at the bar of God for the points of order that have so helped to ruin the oldest of Christian peoples. The great Creator of the universe gave to the Armenians the soul of a mighty people, and through the storm and strife and stress of sixteen centuries that proud spirit has never broken. Christendom has deserted them, and if the God of their fathers and our fathers is to give to them as their own the land they have held so long, the rescue must come soon, and surely it will.

Right forever on the scaffold,
Wrong forever on the throne,
But that scaffold sways the future,
And behind the dim unknown
Standeth God within the shadow,

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

ne

HON, SCHUYLER OTIS BLAND,

OF VIRGINIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Sunday, May 28, 1922.

The House had under consideration House Resolution 356, relating to the life, character, and public services of Hon. Henny D. Flood, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

Mr. BLAND of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, under leave granted to extend my remarks, I wish to pay a brief tribute to the public service of Mr. Frood. It was my misfortune that I could not be present when the exercises were held. Sickness detained me. Except for that cause I would have participated in those exercises. I can add now little, if anything, to the splendid tributes already paid to Mr. Frood's worth. The story of his life and work has been written in the language of love. His zeal and fidelity are well attested by the causes he champloned and by the results he attained.

When the sad message came to us that Mr. Flood was dead, his colleagues felt a keen sense of personal loss. The people of his district, who had long honored him, and whom he in turn had honored, grieved that he had gone. Virginia mourned the early departure of a distinguished and faithful son. I joined in that sorrow.

I had not known Mr. Flood long. Our acquaintance began with my entry into service here in July, 1918. He was among the first of my colleagues whom I met, and I found him ever ready to assist me and willing to advise me. He was ever courteous and considerate, manifesting at all times a desire to make my service a success. Out of the abundance of his legislative experience he was able to advise wisely, and his advice was given cheerfully. He was of material assistance to me, and not to me alone but to all new Members.

Mr. Floop's service at the head of the great Committee on Foreign Affairs, of which he was a member during the war, must be remembered always. His coworkers have attested his service to his native State and to the Nation. He was faithful to State and Nation alike, and he was untiring always in his efforts for their welfare. Intense, energetic, courageous, and devoted to country, he achieved much for his country's welfare. He was loyal to friend and fearless to foe. He was an indefatigable worker, and whenever call to service came he was ready. To the great party of which he was a most important part he gave generously, yielding at last his life in a struggle that culminated in the greatest victory his party had won in Virginia for many years.

From young manhood to the day of his death Mr. Flood was fighting in the cause of the Democratic Party. He was a leader among men. Representing that great party, he served with signal ability in the general assembly of the State, in the constitutional convention of his State, and in the Congress of the Nation.

Mr. Floor was aggressive. When he supported a cause he rendered no half-hearted service. He gave the best that was in him. He fought valiantly, and usually where the battle tol when the President delivered his wonderful address to Conwas the hottest he might be found. He never failed in an unfaltering love for his native State.

But I dare not attempt in the brief limits of a memorial address to recount his services. Though I knew him but a few years, our brief acquaintance ripened into friendship. When I last saw him he was bearing the banner of his party to splendid victory. I little realized that he was to pass so soon. Yet at that time his strength was failing. He spared not himself in that struggle. From every section came the call for his personal work, and so far as humanly possible every call was answered. He stopped not to count the cost, so far as he personally was concerned. Had he done so he might yet be with us.

I knew Mr. Frood in his home, where the gentler, finer qualities of the man were clearly shown. There, with his family around him, he was at his best.

The vacant places in our ranks are soon filled. The scenes shift constantly. The faces of to-day are absent to-morrow. New faces come. Thus it has always been and will always be; but while his comrades remain Mr. Floor will live in loving memory. When these comrades shall have gone, he will live in the splendid record that he made in the legislative halls of the Nation.

To us Mr. Flood is asleep, and we may not wake him; but after all may he not now know in fuller measure that—

Death is the veil which Those who live call life; They sleep, and it is lifted.

ADDRESS

HON. R. WALTON MOORE,

OF VIRGINIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Sunday, May 28, 1922.

The House had under consideration House Resolution 356, relating to the life, character, and public services of Hon. H. D. Flood, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

Mr. MOORE of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I unite with the others who have so eloquently discussed the events of his public career and the relations that marked his private life, in deploring the untimely death of our late colleague. I will long think of him as closely identified with three most important periods in the history of his State and the country.

periods in the history of his State and the country. He served in the Legislature of Virginia at a time when the devastation created by the Clvil War was being repaired; when the resources of the State were extremely limited; and when a serious controversy as to the amount and settlement of its indebtedness placed it in a most uncertain and precarious position. The fate of Virginia then depended upon the wisdom and vigor of the legislature and the view to be taken by the Supreme Court of its enactments. At that juncture Mr. Flood, though a youthful member of the house of delegates, displayed his characteristic resolution and energy, and contributed his full part in solving the great problem that was being dealt with.

Later, Mr. Flood served in the State constitutional convention of 1901-02. The State was then called upon to solve another great problem which necessitated the recasting of its fundamental law. The situation was difficult; the work most delicate and laborious; and the demand upon the time, the strength, and the patience of the members of the convention almost beyond precedent. In that body, whose labors, after long months of toil, were brought to a successful conclusion. Mr. Flood was one of the outstanding figures. He served on the most important committee, which was charged with the duty of considering and reporting a suffrage plan, and he ably and zealously participated in the debates upon all of the vital issues which had to be disposed of. While the record of his service in the legislature can only be known by reference to the official journals and to the newspapers of the time, the details of his record in the convention are fortunately preserved in the stenographic report of its proceedings, to which those who come after us will turn for information as to the great danger that was then threatening and the course pursued by him and his colleagues in their effort to avert it and make the future safe.

Then, in the maturity of his experience as a Member of the House of Representatives, it fell to him to bring before the House the resolution under which this country entered the World War. There will never be forgotten the marvelously dramatic incidents of the spring of 1917—the scene at the Capital when the President delivered his wooderful address to Congress, declaring that the time had arrived for definite and final action, and the scene a little later when the resolution of the Committee on Foreign Affairs was brought forward for consideration by its chairman, Mr. FLOOD.

Thomas Jefferson's public career was of a most varied character. But in writing his own epitaph he expressed the desire that he should be remembered as "author of the Declaration of Independence, of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom, and father of the University of Virginia." There are many of us who, disregarding incidents that are comparatively minor, will wish to have our inmented colleague remembered as a public man because of the service he rendered his State and his country in connection with the three great transactions I have briefly outlined, in which he so conspicuously participated.

The Agricultural Interests of the Country Should Have a Representative on the Federal Reserve Board.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM E. ANDREWS,

OF NEBRASKA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Tuesday, May 23, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (S. 2263) to amend the Federal reserve act approved December 23, 1913.

Mr. ANDREWS of Nebraska. Mr. Chairman, this bill proposes to amend the Federal reserve act in such a manner as to give distinct recognition and representation to the agricultural interests of the country in the membership of the Federal Reserve Board. This is a very wise and a very important amend-

Agriculture is the fundamental enterprise of the Nation. Measures which will contribute to its increased prosperity will enhance and promote the welfare of every other financial industry and economic enterprise of the Nation. Those who think that agriculture must be hampered in order that other enterprises may prosper make a very great mistake with respect to the welfare of the entire country.

The Federal reserve system was originally designed to assist all legitimate enterprises of the American people, particularly in times of stress and emergency. The general outlines of this system were established by the work of the Monetary Commission in an effort to stabilize the banking system of the country and furnish an elastic currency that would meet, handle, and reach all sections of the country by furnishing adequate funds to protect and promote all lines of American industry

In 1920 and 1921, however, the Federal Reserve Board failed to respond to the needs of the agricultural interests of the country to protect them against serious loss. The board entered upon a period of deflation at the critical moment, advanced rates, compelled member banks, especially in the Kansas City district, to liquidate their loans. That action compelled the member banks, especially in that section of the country, as it did in many others, to call upon farmers for the liquidation of their loans at a time when they needed credit. This policy of deflation inaugurated and put into effect by the Federal Reserve Board carried ruin to farmers and stockmen in different parts of the country.

If the Federal Reserve Board had responded faithfully to the original purpose of its creation it would have granted to those member banks an extension of time on their paper which, in turn, would have enabled those banks to have extended the credit to the farmers and stockmen who were otherwise thrown into serious distress.

When the governor of the board, Mr. W. P. G. Harding, was asked to consider the provision of the law which says that the Federal reserve system was not created to make profits, he promptly replied that the Federal reserve system could not avoid making profits for that period of time. Of course, greater profits would follow to the system with an advance in rates and the placing of larger loans at the same time in the financial centers of the country. It is interesting to note that at that very time speculators were manipulating the sugar market. They succeeded to such an extent that the price of sugar to the consumers was advanced to 25 and 30 cents a pound.

If the Federal Reserve Board had granted like favors to the agricultural sections of the country, many farmers and stockmen would have been saved from financial bankruptcy.

In order to make it doubly certain that no such evil purpose shall be perpetrated upon the agricultural interests hereafter a loyal and able representative of those interests should have a place on the Federal Reserve Board. Under such circumstances the signal can be given, the facts can be disclosed, and the agricultural interests of the country will not be likely to sustain the injuries that they did formerly when they had no representative on that board.

It is urged by some that this bill is class legislation. The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Luce] has dwelt at great length upon the alleged follies of class legislation. In his dreams he seems to see an organization which he describes as the agricultural bloc. In his nightly visions he imagines that the farm bloc is to bring great misfortune to the country. In his wakeful and lucid moments he will surely come to understand that the so-called farm bloc will not be so dictatorial in the affairs of the Nation as the so-called eastern or New England bloc that dominated legislative affairs for a long period of time. Men in this and the former Congress who recognize the importance of giving to the agricultural interests of the country proper recognition in keeping with the welfare of the entire Nation must be considered and adjusted equitably with one another so as to give the greatest activity and prosperity to each and all. They are simply demanding that the agricultural interests shall not be placed below their rightful place in this national program.

We do not come with ill will and sinister purposes toward any important legitimate interests of the country. But we do insist that no one shall lay violent hands upon the fundamental industry of the American people—agriculture.

Of course it is not to be expected that the appointment of a representative of agriculture on the Federal Reserve Board will solve all the ills from which the Nation may at any time suffer. It will, however, assure the agricultural interests of the Nation a loyal, proper, and effective representation in the adjustment of those interests throughout the country.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. Black] calls the attention of the House to the increased loans through the Federal reserve system during the period of agricultural deflation. By that citation he seeks to convey the idea that the agricultural interests had funds available simply because the Federal reserve system had a larger amount of loans outstanding. His assumption in this matter is completely refuted by the fact that the farmers did not get the money and could not get the money. The further fact should also be noted that the farmers were compelled to turn over every dollar they could secure to the Federal reserve system. Then note the additional significant fact that the Federal reserve system put out larger amounts elsewhere. These facts give the assurance that the farmers did not get the money and also that the sugar speculators did get money that the farmers were entitled to receive.

These citations might be multiplied at almost indefinite length. Those already given, however, are sufficient to demonstrate the wisdom of placing a representative of agriculture on the Federal Reserve Board.

I shall support this bill most heartily. I am in favor of eliminating the committee amendments and passing the bill substantially as it came to us from the Senate. mediately; end debate; pass the bill; and thus hasten the appointment of a man on the Federal Reserve Board to represent the agricultural interests of the Nation.

SPEECH

HENCE JACOWAY, HON.

OF ARKANSAS.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Thursday, May 25, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the resolution (S. J. Res. 12) authorizing the President to require the United States Sugar Equalization Board (Inc.) to take over and dispose of 13,902 tons of sugar imported from the Argentine Republic.

Mr. JACOWAY. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, some one of the law writers has defined a trial as being the judicial ascertainment of the truth." I paraphrase that definition this afternoon in addressing the committee, and say that a joint resolution of this character is a "congressional ascertainment of the truth."

As a member of the Committee on Agriculture, gentlemen, I have gone into the testimony that was adduced relative to this claim, both before the committee of the Senate and before my own committee, and I am driven unalterably to the conclusion, beyond peradventure of a doubt, that the integrity of the Federal Government is involved in your vote here to-day.

eral Government is involved in your vote here to-day.

As I see it, holding this record up by its four corners, and viewing it in the absence of demagogery or camouflage, we are seeking only to ascertain the truth. In my judgment, every man who votes on this resolution, if he understands the testimony as I do, will cast his vote in the affirmative. I want to say also in the beginning that I have no senseless hostility against wealth. If it has been honestly earned, I admire and commend the man who has honestly earned it.

Now, the test here to-day, gentlemen of the committee, is whether or not wealth shall be penalized. If so, this resolution shall fail. During my 12 years' membership in this House I have noticed the comings and goings of the gentlemen of this House, and taking into consideration the plans and specifications upon which my fellow Members are builded, I say I believe that all of you are seekers after the truth, and want to know what the truth is, and when that truth has been evolved to your satisfaction you will let your vote reflect what you think is the truth.

There are some things in this resolution and in this testimony that are uncontradicted. The men tho may follow me and those who have preceded me can not take this record and contradict it, and this is the plain fact. I am sure that my friend from Kansas and my friend from Texas have inadvertently misstated the facts as to the agency created on behalf of the Government for the purchase of this Argentine sugar. At the time the American Trading Co. and B. H. Howell & Son Co. entered into this contract with the Department of State and the Department of Justice, Attorney General Palmer considered that he had the right and the legal authority to enter into this contract with these parties. Mr. Palmer in his testimony states, on page 38, House hearings, January, 1920:

Inony states, on page 38, House hearings, January, 1920:

In the first place, the plan which was inaugurated was a perfectly proper one and a lawful one under the law. The President had the right, under the Lever Act, section 2, which gave him very large powers with respect to the securing of a supply and the control of the distribution of all of the necessaries of life, to enter into all voluntary arrangements or agreements, to create and use any agents or agencies, to accept the services of any persons without compensation, to cooperate with any agency or person, to utilize any department or agency of the Government, and to coordinate their activities so as to avoid any preventable loss or duplication of efforts or of funds.

I say it was a lawful plan, therefore, and a proper plan. I say also that it was a beneficial plan to the people of the country, and they got the benefit by it.

And on page 43 of the same hearings Attorney General Palmer further states:

What I said was that the President under that section (section 2 of the Lever Act) was within his powers in utilizing the agency of the Department of Justice and of these gentlemen, B. H. Howell Son & Co., and the American Trading Corporation, to secure an adequate supply of sugar and an equitable distribution at a fair price. They are "agencies," and he could use any agencies that he saw fit.

Mr. Figg, the Assistant Attorney General, who handled the details of this transaction, stated that he felt the Department of Justice was empowered under section 2 of the Lever Act, and the proclamation of the President of November 21, 1919, transferring the powers of the Food Administration to the Department of Justice. (Hearings January, 1920, p. 77.)

The correspondence between the State Department and the Department of Justice and the cables to and from our embassy in Buenos Aires clearly show the authority and power of the Department of Justice to act in this matter was accepted without question by all Government officials concerned and by the agencies themselves.

B. H. Howell & Son Co. thought they had the right to enter into it, and they thought the Department of Justice was clothed with the proper authority. The American Trading Co. thought the same thing, and the chronology of this whole transaction when it is evolved and unfolded before you shows that this belief was thoroughly warranted, and that there was no camoufage or skulduggery in it, but that B. H. Howell Son & Co., in the person of Mr. Post, and the American Trading Co., in the actions they performed in this matter, were actuated by the highest degree of patriotism.

Mr. Franklin, whose testimony is unimpeachable, stated both before the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry of the Senate and the Agriculture Committee of the House the history of this transaction in detail without any knowledge of the contents of the files of the State Department and Department of Justice in respect thereto. It is a remarkable thing to find now, when these records of these departments are available to members of the committee long after the testimony was completed, that they confirm absolutely and in detail the correctness of the statements made by Mr. Franklin.

My friend from Kansas in his remarks has stated that this matter was started by Mr. Franklin and some one from the Department of State bringing it to the attention of the Department of Justice, whereas, as a matter of fact, the whole matter arose in consequence of a cablegram dated April 1, 1920, from the American ambassador in Argentina to the Secretary of State, which reads as follows:

BUENOS AIRES, April 1, 1920.

SECRETARY OF STATE,
Washington.

Important; 82, April 1, noon.

For Bureau Foreign Commerce. At my suggestion ambassador has discussed informally with Minister for Foreign Affairs possibility of lifting Argentine embargo on sugar export to permit shipment, whole or part, of 60,000 tons exportable surplus to States in view our shortage. Argentine might grant permission if request be made through State Department designating American firm or firms to arrange matters here with refineries. Klein.

From this cablegram you will see that the situation in the Argentine was known in the State Department, and had been communicated to the Department of Justice nearly a month before Mr. Franklin had his conversation with officials of the State Department on other matters, during which this Argentine sugar matter was brought up. It was on April 27 that the matter was mentioned to him at the State Department, and the suggestion was made that the situation be discussed with officials of the Department of Justice, Nothing came of this preliminary discussion until a week or 10 days later, when Mr. Figg, of the Department of Justice, sent for Mr. Franklin, and they met for the first time on May 7, 1920. At this meeting Mr. Figg outlined the plans he had in mind, and asked that the American Trading Co. undertake to buy and import this sugar for the Government. Mr. Franklin was not even then satisfied with the information submitted, and asked that the data be further confirmed through the State Department and the American Embassy in Buenos Aires; and further stated that his company would not enter into the arrangement unless the Department of Justice selected a large and reputable firm to handle the distribution of the sugar in the United States.

After further confirming the information received from the State Department the Department of Justice wrote to the American Trading Co. on May 11, 1920, instructing them to buy as much sugar as possible, and stating that arrangements had been made with large interests to handle the distribution. The Department of Justice did not in this letter advise the American Trading Co. who these interests were, and it was not until later, as Mr. Figg stated in his testimony (January, 1920, hearings, p. 79), that he brought the two companies together.

These companies were selected to handle this matter on account of their large facilities and on account of the fact they could expedite this matter better than any other living agency under the American Government, and in view of the fact there was a crying need for a decrease in the price of one of the necessities of life, to wit, sugar, and an increase in the supplies. My friend from Kansas has stated that there was an em-

My friend from Kansas has stated that there was an embargo in the Argentine at that time, under which modifications could be secured provided deposits of a certain kind of sugar, known as "pilet" sugar, were made with the Argentine Government. My friend has been led into a grievous error by confusing the situation which existed at that time with later developments. There was an absolute embargo upon the exportation of Argentine sugar, and hot a single pound could be exported, and it was not until May 22 that a presidential decree was issued permitting the exportation of 100,000 tons of Argentine sugar, provided a deposit of "pilet" sugar equivalent to 30 per cent of the amount to be exported was withheld and deposited with officials of the Argentine Government under certain resale regulations prescribed by that Government. It should be clearly understood, gentlemen, that the entire amount of sugar acquired by these agents on behalf of the United States Government was bought prior to the promulgation of this decree.

I want to particularly impress upon you gentlemen that in these early cablegrams exchanged between the State Department and the American Embassy, and which were communicated to the Department of Justice, there is no mention made of contemplated requirement of this kind, and the arrangement made between these companies and these Government departments was not planned upon any such basis, as there was no intimation that the Argentine Government would impose any restrictions of any nature whatsoever upon the exportation of sugar to this country.

It should be further understood that this "pilet" type of sugar is of a different quality than that purchased by these agents for export to the United States and is of a character which is not used in this country and would not have been marketable here. As a result of the terms of this decree of May 22, the price of this pilet sugar rose rapidly, and to have required these agents to have purchased sufficient of the sugar to comply with the terms of the decree would have nullified the whole transaction and have defeated the plan of the Department of Justice and State Department. Let me read you the memorandum from the American ambassador to the Secretary of State dated June 11, 1920:

[Inclosure 1 in dispatch No. 1211.]

Inclosure 1 in dispatch No. 1211.]

AIDE MEMOURE.

I am instructed by my Government to make the friendly suggestion to your excellency in person that the Argentine Government permit the export of such sugar as was petitioned for by the Government of the United States prior to the recent decree of the Argentine Government (30,000 tons), or at least such amount as has actually been purchased by my Government (14,000 tons), relying on its understanding with the Argentine foreign office, which was kept fully advised of the action of the United States Government throughout.

It does not appear to my Government that the recent decree requiring the deposit of a particular type (pilet) sugar to the extent of 30 per cent of the amount exported should fairly be applied to sugar bought before this decree, relying on the supposition that permission to export would be given without conditions. The United States Government has purchased only sugar of the type known as white granulated; it has no pilet sugar and can procure none at a reasonable price, and hence can not comply with this condition. The United States Government would not have asked permission to export sugar inal the conditions of the decree has not comply with the condition. The united States fovenment would not have asked permission to export sugar inal the conditions of the decree hear foreseen, and to call your excellency's attention to the fact that the petition to export the sugar now in question was filed on behalf of the United States Government by the American Trading Co. some days before the decree, so that to apply to the export of this sugar the conditions of this later decree is, in the view of my Government, retroactive. The formal petition to export the first quantity of sugar was delivered by my secretary personally to the Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs on the 20th of May, but it was first intimated to myself as far back as the 1st of April by the Minister for Foreign Affairs that the Argentine Government would look favorably on a permission

It is clearly apparent from this communication that there was no attempt to favor the American Trading Co. by securing a modification of the embargo, but on the other hand the United States Government was acting through its official representative to secure the sugar on behalf of the American people,

There is another uncontradicted fact that the record discloses beyond peradventure of a doubt, not as the result of hearsay, but mathematically calculated, and the figures will testify to what I am saying, that as a result of the activities of the American Trading Co. and B. H. Howell & Son Co. the price of sugar was so reduced in this country that a billion dollars or more was saved to the American people.

Mr. CLOUSE. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. JACOWAY. I will be glad to.
Mr. CLOUSE. How much of the sugar purchased in the Argentine was brought to this country before the price broke?

Mr. JACOWAY. I do not believe any of it was.
Mr. CLOUSE. As a matter of fact all of their purchasing transactions were closed on May 22, and the embargo lasted until the 23d of June. Mr. JACOWAY. Mr. JACOWAY. I see what the gentleman is leading up to. I can not remember the dates, but I will say to the gentleman in answer to his question that I know it was a condition precedent on the part of the Department of Justice and on the part of the officials of the Department of State, when they said to B. H. Howell & Sou Co. and the American Trading Co.: "If you will go to Argentina and act as our agents in this matter, both as purchasing agents and distributing agents, we give you the solemn word of the American Government that the embargo on that sugar is lifted immediately." And acting in obedience to the promise of the State Department and also the Department of Justice these people went there and bought that sugar, but the Department of Justice was unable to get the embargo lifted for a period of 1 month and 13 days, and during that time the papers in New York and elsewhere were full of the report that great amounts of sugar were coming into this country, and the result was that the price of sugar broke, and before they could get that sugar into the United States a loss was sustained.

I say to you, gentlemen of this House, assuming that they were agents of the Federal Government, when the Federal Government through its duly accredited agents said, "I will get that embargo lifted," and then failed to do it, and the American Trading Co. and B. H. Howell & Son Co. sustained a loss as a result of it, this is a compelling reason for the Federal Government to now pay those losses.

Mr. RAKER, The gentleman is making a very interesting statement.

Mr. JACOWAY. I refuse to yield, unless just for a question. The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired. Mr. JACOWAY. I will ask for additional time, Mr. Chair-

Mr. WARD of New York. How much time?

Mr. JACOWAY. Five minutes. Mr. WARD of New York. I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas five minutes more.

Mr. RAKER. What I wanted to ask the gentleman was how could they be the agents of the Government if they bought, paid for, and handled the sugar in their own names and disposed of it in their own names?

Mr. JACOWAY. I will in answer to that say that at the time this transaction was entered into there was nothing said as to the question of whose name it should be bought in. These people stated they could finance the proposition, and they did it. And in further answer to the argument laid down by the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Tinoneza], in which he said they expected to make a million dollars on this transaction, the record in this case writes an eternal traverse upon that proposition. I state to you that the maximum amount that the American Trading Co. and B. H. Howell & Son. Co. could make out of this transaction would be $140,000 and the minimum $70,000. Under their contract with the Federal Government through its agents they agreed to handle the sugar for 1 cent per pound gross for buying it and 1 cent per pound gross for distributing it.

Mr. JONES of Texas. According to the testimony, they purchased 31,156,000 pounds of sugar.

Mr. JACOWAY. The gentleman will get it by computation.

If you will take 14,000 tons of sugar and multiply it by 2,000 pounds to the ton

Mr. JONES of Texas. According to their own statement on page 22 of the Franklin brief, they purchased 13,909 tons of sugar, which at 2,240 pounds to the ton is equivalent to 31,156,000 pounds, and at 1 cent a pound that is $311,000 to the American Trading Co. and a similar amount to B. H. Howell Son Co

Mr. JACOWAY. That was gross. My statement is that the maximum amount that B. H. Howell & Son Co. could make out of this would be $140,000 and the minimum would be $70,000. and I will figure it to the gentlemen in this way. If you will take a pencil in hand and put down 14,000 tons of sugar and multiply by 2,000 pounds to the ton—

Mr. JONES of Texas. Two thousand two hundred and forty pounds to the ton.

Mr. JACOWAY. Then if he will multiply that by one-quarter of a cent he will get the figures I have arrived at. Mr. Post testified that his net profit on all of these transactions was onequarter of a cent per pound.

Mr. WALSH. Will the gentleman from Arkansas yield for brief question?

Mr. JACOWAY. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts

Mr. WALSH. Would not the natural effect of the lifting of the embargo, which these people requested, be to lower the price of sugar?

Mr. JACOWAY. Yes. Mr. TINCHER. In regard to this controversy about the number of pounds in a ton—

Mr. JACOWAY. I was counting 2,000 pounds to a ton.

Mr. LINEBERGER. I think it is a metric ton of 2,204 pounds.

Mr. JACOWAY. Then there would be that difference between 2,000 pounds and 2,204 pounds, and to this extent I am in error.

There is one other point to which I wish to direct your particular attention, because it ranks next in importance to the failure of the Government departments to secure the prompt lifting of the Argentine embargo as one of the reasons for the When the drop in the price of sugar in the market here 1088. came as a result of publicity given these importations and it became apparent to all concerned that a loss would inevitably ensue, it was suggested to the Department of Justice and the State Department that a portion of the sugar be resold in Argentina, where the market had materially advanced. The United States Government prevented such resale in Argentina.

My friend from Kansas and my friend from Kentucky both misconstrue the facts when they state that this Government gave permission to these agents to resell the sugar in Argentina. If you will refer to the letter of the Department of Justice to the American Trading Co., dated August 2, 1920, you will find they were absolutely refused permission to resell the sugar in Argentina.

In connection with this refusal I want to read to you a telegram which was sent by the State Department to the American ambassador in Buenos Aires on July 29, 1920. It reads as

DEPARTMENT OF STATE TO THE AMERICAN EMBASSY AT BUENOS AIRES, JULY 80, 1920.

[Paraphrase.]

[Paraphrase.]

Reference is made to the telegram of the embassy at Buenos Aires under date of July 29, 11 p. m.

The American Trading Co. has been advised by the Attorney General that it should not allow any of the sugar purchased in the Argentine Republic, and amounting to the figure of 14,000 tons, to be sold in the Argentine Republic. In case the embassy finds that rumors are prevailing that the American Trading Co. has been allowed to sell the embassy may point out in a statement communicated to the newspapers that all of the above sugar purchased in the Argentine has been purchased for use in the United States.

In spite of the definite refusal contained in letter of August 2, the situation was so serious that a further effort was made by these agents to have the United States Government dispose of this sugar remaining in Argentina, and as a result the Secretary of State cabled the American Embassy on August 12 as follows:

(Paraphrase of cablegram.)

To: American Embassy at Buenos Aires, Argentina. Dated: August 12, 6 p. m. Number: 88.

Reference is made to your No. 185 of August 6 and No. 186 of Reference is made to your No. 185 of August 6 and No. 186 of August 9.

1. If approved by Sullivan, convey to the Government of Argentina that this Government desires to state again its appreciation of its favor in permitting the export of sugar to relieve necessities in this country; and that since the situation in the United States has been remedled in large measure through the courteous act of the Argentine Government and at the same time the market in Argentina appears to be suffering from a sugar shortage, this Government would be glad to resell to the Argentine Government, if it so desires, or on the market under its supervision, such quantities of sugar which have no already been exported to the United States; that the sugar is offered at 16 cents United States currency and amounts to 4,383 tons. You may explain to the Argentine Government, if you think advisable, that the stated price is placed somewhat above purchase price in order cover expenditures incidental to its handling, purchase, and storage.

2. Please be careful to avoid giving impression which you warned against in your cablegram of July 29, No. 178.

(Signed) Colby.

(Signed) This offer evidently was given careful consideration by the Argentine Government, as a reply was not received until August 23, reading as follows:

(Paraphrase of cablegram.)

STATE DEPARTMENT, Washington. No. 196 of August 23, 6 p. m.

No. 196 of August 23, 6 p. m.

I have been told by the Minister for Foreign Affairs that the Argentine Government, while appreciating the kindness of the United States Government in making this offer, it prefers that the sugar shall be shipped to the United States as already arranged, since the permit therefor has been granted.

There has been appointed a congressional committee to investigate the subject of the exportation of sugar from Argentina and doubtless there will be several (scrapes?).

I believe that the sale to (by) the American Trading Co. here of any of the sugar may lead to unfavorable criticism. Sullivan will ship 1,500 tons by the Arabic.

(Signed) Wadsworth.

(Signed) WADSWORTH. Gentlemen, while there may be some doubt that this is a legal claim, yet it is a highly moral claim. Attorney General Daugherty, Ex-Attorney General Palmer, and State Department officials all agree in that; but there are other debts that the Federal Government should pay, saving and excepting legal debts and moral debts. The Supreme Court of the United States in passing on that question construed, in the case of United States Realty Company (163 U. S. 427), wherein Mr. Justice Peckham says:

ham says:

Under the provisions of the Constitution Congress has power "to pay the 'debts' of the United States. " " " What are the debts of the United States within the meaning of the constitutional provisions?" It is conceled and, indeed, it can not be questioned, that the debts are not limited to those which are evidenced by some written obligation or to those which are otherwise of a strictly legal character. The term 'debt' includes those debts or claims which rest upon a merely equitable or honorary obligation and which would not be recoverable in a court of law if existing against an individual. The Nation, broadly speaking, owes a 'debt' to an individual when his claim grows out of general principles of right and justice; when, in other words, it is based upon considerations of a moral or merely honorary nature, such as are binding on the conscience or the honor of the individual, although the debt could obtain no recognition in a court of law."

That, gentlemen of the committee, is the foundation upon which this claim rests. I was never more convinced in my life than I am of the purpose of the United States Government and the American Trading Co. and B. H. Howell & Son Co. in enter-ing into this contract, because every time you get back to the facts in the record it shows that the Department of Justice, the Department of State, B. H. Howell & Son Co., and the American Trading Co. all thought they had the right to enter into this contract in order to reduce the price of sugar. It was never conceived by B. H. Howell & Son Co. and the American Trading Co. that if they lost on this sugar but what they would be freely reimbursed by the Federal Government, because their compensation was fixed in the beginning, I cent a pound for the purchase and 1 cent a pound for the distribution. They were agents hopelessly bound by specific instructions from their principal, the Federal Government, and could exercise no will of their own at any time, nor in any respect. Gentlemen, I do not know anything of B. H. Howell & Son Co. I know no member of the firm except Mr. Post. I am not acquainted with the American Trading Co., except Mr. Franklin, but I say this is an honest and just claim on the Federal Government, and I hope the resolution will prevail when the vote is taken. EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON, OF SOUTH DAKOTA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, July 5, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the Record and print the so-called "slacker lists," I desire to call attention to a letter from The Adjutant General's office, dated June 30, 1922.

It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of, the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake the names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the Record the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

The lists in which these names were originally included have been given at least one month's publicity.

The name of any man who, since the publication of the lists, has been found to have actually rendered service in either our own forces or in those of the Allies during the period between May 18, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is not included; nor is that of any man who, though he rendered no service during the period mentioned, has, since the publication of his name, been found to have been erroneously inducted or to have been errone-ously certified as a deserter, nor that of any man who is known to be no longer living.

Every reasonable effort has been made by the War Department to eliminate from these lists names which for any of the aforementioned reasons should not appear thereon. Should it develop, however, that certain of the names listed below should for any of these reasons likewise be removed, notice to that effect will be published in each such case in a later issue of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.
